Placement Center sponsors career day

Health Career Opportunities Day will be held all day today in the MSC Ballroom. The program will provide an opportunity for students to talk to representatives from a wide variety of health schools and employing organizations for both employment and educational opportunities.

Health career reps at MSC fair today

By MARY ANN HARVEY

Almost 30 campus representatives from occupational and educational institutions will be at Texas A&M today to participate in Health Career Opportunities Day.

Representatives from health institutions will staff booths in 225 Memorial Student Center from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Students will be able to talk to the representatives about jobs in the health care field and get information about health-related educational programs.

Health Career Opportunities Day, sponsored by the Placement Center, is in its fifth year.

The program brings representatives from 16 medical departments of Texas universities and 12 employment organizations such as the Peace

Corps and the Gulf Coast Regional Blood Center.

Judy Vulliet, assistant director for the Placement Center, says a committee of A&M faculty members from a variety of colleges was involved in planning this year's program.

Vulliet says she encourages students to participate because all majors will find something of interest.

"There are health career opportunities for almost every major because the health field is so broad," Vulliet says.

Jobs are available in research, health care delivery, administration of health care services, sales and customer service, and auxiliary services such as engineering, accounting, computer science and public relations, she says.

Vietnamese seize Cambodian base

Associated Press

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand — About 1,000 Vietnamese troops seized a Khmer Rouge outpost near a major base in the mountains of western Cambodia to try to drive the guerrillas into a vise, Thai military officers said Monday.

The Khmer Rouge claimed its troops had surrounded Battambang, Cambodia's second-largest city, and forced Vietnam to divert some of its troops to the Cambodian interior.

A top Thai military official said the report "could be true."

After an attack Sunday, the Vietnamese seized an outpost a few miles from the Khmer Rouge stronghold at Khao Din, said Col. Cheththa Thannajaro, deputy commander of the Eastern Field Force.

He said the guerrillas "withdrew from their outpost after long resistance against heavily armed Vietnamese forces ... It doesn't mean they were defeated. They withdrew to set up another defense line."

The Communist Khmer Rouge is the largest part of a coalition fighting to oust the Vietnamese from Cambodia. Vietnam invaded Cambodia in late 1978, ousting the Khmer Rouge government.

Vietnamese troops have overrun all the bases of the Khmer People's Liberation Front.

The troops have now targeted other Khmer Rouge provinces.

Khmer Rouge radio said Vietnam had moved tanks from battlefields near Aranyaprathet to defend Battambang.

"It could be true," Cheththa said of the new Khmer Rouge claim.

"I've received intelligence reports that the guerrillas have moved into the interior for attacks as Vietnam reinforces its army at the front line."

On the other major battle front north of Khao Din, the Khmer Rouge ambushed Vietnamese forces Monday near the Phnom Mark Hoenu hills, Thai sources said.

They said guerrillas struck to discourage Vietnam's preparations for a drive on the Khmer Rouge stronghold at Phnom Malai.

In Bangkok, foreign ministers from the Association of Southeast Asian Nations called on countries to increase their "support and assistance to the Kampuchea (Cambodia) people in their political and military struggle to liberate their homeland from foreign occupation."
