Math department to drop courses

By WASH A. JONES

Reporter The Department of Mathematics plans to eliminate freshmen algebra and trigonometry by Fall 1986. H. Elton Lacey, department head, says the department plans to eliminate several courses which are ba-sically a review of high school

Some of the changes may be im-plemented in Fall 1985 if the department suffers serious cutbacks in tea-ching staff, Lacey says. Vince Schielack, associate depart-ment head, says the University administration will inform high schools about the changes so high school stu-dents will know what courses they courses or cover topics discussed in need to master before coming to the other courses.

The changes will correspond to the core curriculum under consider-ation by a Faculty Senate committee, Lacey says.

Department officials plan to elimi-nate Math 102 Algebra, Math 103 Plane Trigonometry, Math 104 Ana-lytic Geometry and Math 150 Functions, Trigonometry and Linear Systems

The freshmen sequences that will be offered are Math 130 Pre-calcu-lus, Math 131 Calculus, Math 165 Topics in Contemporary Mathemat-ics I and Math 166 Topics in Con-temporary Mathematics II. Math 130 will be a review of algebra and trigonometry for students who are not prepared to take calculus.

For business majors, Math 141 Business Math I and Math 142 Business Math II will be the required courses in finite mathematics and calculus, respectively.

University

James Boone, math professor and the state Coordinating Board com-mittee member, says changes are not designed to restrict a student's entrance to A&M.

"The purpose is just to assign re-sponsibility," Boone says. "We deter-mine who (which institution) gets paid to teach which courses.

He says the Coordinating Board's responsibility is to assure that taxes are used more efficiently by colleges and universities and that high school courses are not duplicated.

A&M does not have the funds to offer remedial math courses, Boone says. Remediation is primarily the responsibility of junior colleges, he Boone says he believes the changes will have a positive effect on the University.

"I think we are going to end up offering better mathematics," Boone says.

Concert Polish pianist to play here

By TRENT LEOPOLD Staff Writer

The Texas A&M Opera and Performing Arts Society will present pianist Emanuel Ax in concert at Rudder Auditorium Monday evening. The Polish-born musician will be playing pieces written by Haydn, Ravel, Liszt and Chopin beginning at 8 p.m.

Ax was born in 1949, and began studying the piano under his father's direction at age seven. When he was 10, his family left Poland for Winnipeg, Canada, where they had relatives.

Ax then moved to New York and enrolled in Julliard's Pre-College di-vision in 1961. He studied with Miecyslaw Munz and enrolled in Columbia University where he majored in French.

In the early 1970s, he went on a Latin American tour and entered a number of European competitions. But he did not receive worldwide attention until 1974, when he won the first Rubinstein contest in Tel Aviv. Ax then signed a recording con-tract with RCA and has since re-mained with this label. Many of his recordings are best sellers. Both his Chopin Concert and his Schumann's Humoreske and Fantasiestucke have received Grammy Award nominations. Ax has played with the Boston Symphony, the Los Angeles Philharmonic and the Phila-delphia Orchestra. He also performed the United States premiere of Hans Werner Henze's "Tristan" with the New York Philharmonic at Avery Fisher Hall.

His performances this season in-clude a Carnegie Hall recital and performances with the Chamber Music Society at the Lincoln Center.

Tickets for Ax's performance are available at the Memorial Student Center box office and all Ticketron outlets including Dillard's at Post Oak Mall. They are $5 and $7 for A&M students; $7 and $8.75 adult non-students.
