Rock group donates four proceeds to poor

Associated Press

LONDON — The British rock group UB40 has given 100,000 pounds (106,000), the entire proceeds of an African tour, to a charity for Zimbabwe's poor and homeless, the group's manager said Monday.

Manager Dave Campbell, brother of group members Rob and Ali Campbell, said the musicians had hoped to keep the gift secret, the British domestic news agency Press Association reported.

The agency said that Campbell father Ian first leaked word of the gift. "The lads didn't tell anyone what they had done because they didn't want to make a big thing of it," he was quoted as saying.

Dave Campbell said, "If you do something like that and tell the world about it, you're going to get 100,000 pounds worth of free publicity for yourself. It would be a

Turner dominates Grammy awards

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Soul singer Tina Turner was named best female pop vocalist and Cyndi Lauper was named best new artist of the year Tuesday at the 27th annual Grammy awards presentation.

"I've been waiting for this opportunity for such a long time," the 43-year-old rhythm and blues queen said in accepting her award. She also won for best female rock vocalist for her "Better Be Good to Me."

Turner's "What's Love Got to Do With It" was named song of the year in the nationally televised awards show.

Prince and his band, the New Power Generation, won best rock performance by a duo with vocal for the "Purple Rain" LP.

Prince also won for writing the best rhythm and blues song, "I Feel For You." The song was recorded by Chaka Khan, who was named best female rhythm and blues artist.

Phil Collins, who took a leave of absence from the British rock group Genesis, was named best male pop vocalist for "Against All Odds (Take a Look at Me Now)."

Blue collar rocker Bruce Springsteen won his first Grammy for best rock male vocalist for his sensuous "Dancing in the Dark."

The Pointer Sisters' won Grammys both for vocal arrangement for "Automatic" and for pop performance by a duo or group for their "Jump" single.

Michael Jackson, who had dominated last year's presentation by winning a record eight awards, was absent from this year's show. His "Making Michael Jackson's Thriller" won best video album.

Best female country vocal performance was by Emmy Lou Harris for "In My Dreams," and Merle Haggard won for best country male vocal.

Billy Ocean won the rhythm and blues male vocal Grammy for his "Caribbean Queen" single.

Tina Turner's "What's Love Got to Do With It" was named record of the year and Lionel Richie's "Can't Slow Down" was named album of the year.
