Legislature hears bill for seat belts

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Bills that would require anyone riding in the front seat of a passenger car to wear a seat belt were introduced in the Senate and House Tuesday amid claims the legislation would save many lives.

The measures would exempt pickup trucks.

Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, and Rep. Bill Messer, D-Belton, quickly denied their proposals were aimed at evasion of future federal requirements for air bags in automobiles.

Director of Public Safety James Adams endorsed the bills saying full compliance might result in saving 1,200 of the 3,000 to 4,000 killed annually in recent years on the state's highways.

Representatives of the Texas Coalition for Seat Belts, consisting of 26 organizations, also offered support.

Lyon said a public opinion survey indicated 69 percent of the residents of Texas favor safety belt laws for the driver and front seat passengers. The poll showed 82 percent would obey the law if passed.

The proposed law would go into effect Sept. 1 of this year but no $25 to $50 fines would be levied until Dec. 1 to allow time for a driver education program by the DPS.

Any person at least 15 years old in the front seat of a passenger car would be required to wear a seat belt while the car was being operated on any road, street or highway. The operator of the car would be required to see that any front seat rider from 4 to 15 years old was wearing a seat belt.

"We're practical pragmatists," Messer said when asked why the bill did not apply to pickup trucks. "We want this to get the broadest use with the least amount of opposition, and we realize we may have some opposition in the rural part of the state."

Lyon said the bill was not intended to be equal to or substitute for federal restrictions by the Department of Transportation, which presently call for passive restraints and air bags in new cars by 1990.

Senate bill OK'd to pay the abused

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The Senate Tuesday voted to give to abused children and battered spouses money from the Crime Victims Compensation Act.

The change would bring Texas into compliance with federal law and make the state eligible for $2 million in federal funds.

The bill was sent to the House on voice vote.

Other bills approved by the Senate and sent to the House would:

- Give judges authority to make certain that convicts serve time in prison rather than in county jails.

- Suggest bail for certain crimes to bring uniformity throughout the state.

- Allow a judge to award expenses and attorney's fees against a person who has committed family violence.

The House looked at only one bill Tuesday, approving 129-0 an amended version of a Senate bill making it illegal to sell human organs for profit.

Study about state female worker wages under attack

Associated Press

AUSTIN — A study to decide if female state workers are underpaid could lead to a direct change on our free enterprise system, a Texas Eagle Forum leader said Tuesday at the Capitol.

Donna Muldrew told a news conference that many people do not want to do the grungy work that a lot of blue collar workers do. If a woman wants the wages of a truck driver or whatever, she has the opportunity to do so, she said.

Austin Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos has introduced a bill calling for a study of state employee pay. He filed the measure after the Texas State Employees Union and Communications Workers of America issued a report that says there is a "sex-based wage gap" among state workers.

Muldrew said it is true that the average wage of all working women is 59-62 percent of the average wage of all working men.

"However, there are economic factors that contribute to this," she said. "It is not due to discrimination. It is not due to conspiracy."

Muldrew said marriage plays a role in the pay gap. Men and women get married and they usually have babies. The average woman has been on her current job 2.6 years, the average man has been on his current job 4.5 years," she said.
