Proposed bill protects state seniority system

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-LaMarque, filed a bill Monday which would establish a seniority system for state employees should layoffs be implemented.

"In the event a layoff of state employees becomes necessary, career employees will be the last to be removed," Criss said in a written statement.

"They will also be the first to be recalled if employment is increased at a later time."

Mel Scott, international union area director for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said the legislation would let employees know where they stand concerning layoff from state service.
