TOTO burst on stage in G. Rollie White Coliseum with their latest release "Carmen."

Sound system hampers concert

TOTO pulls out quality show

By MARCY BASILE
Staff Writer

Despite a terrible sound system and G. Rollie White's infamous acoustics, four time Grammy award winners TOTO performed an excellent show in G. Rollie White Coliseum last night.

The show began ominously. Blue lights, lingering smoke from the smoke machine tests and an almost bare stage. Then came TOTO. From the first note of "Carmen," their opening number, to the fading notes of the second encore, the band was hot.

At first, the sound system refused to cooperate. Feedback and humming marred the otherwise mesmerizing ballad "I Won't Hold You Back." Eventually, either the sound system problem was fixed or the crowd got used to the results. Regardless, the show only improved.

The song that brought the crowd to its feet was "Stranger in Town."

At the request of keyboardist David Paich, the lights were lowered and eerie green-white lights spotted on Paich. As he spoke to the crowd, the moaning chords of "Stranger in Town" began to crescendo in the background. Suddenly, the band burst into a rambunctious rendition of the song accompanied by synchronized lighting.

In fact, the only thing to outshine TOTO's music was the light show.

Never has G. Rollie White been host to such impressive lights. Although colored lights were used, the colors didn't become obnoxious. Subtle blues, greens and whites, with an occasional red thrown in for effect, lent a pleasing glow to the stage. Swirling lights emphasized the chorus of "Stranger in Town" while a lighted backdrop changed from beams to spots throughout "Africa."

Once TOTO got the crowd on its feet, there was no sitting down. From "Stranger in Town" the band somewhat haltingly moved into "Tow the Line." The crowd refused to settle down so the band flowed into a melodious beginning for "Africa."

The best part of the show was the tune "Africa." Alone on stage, Paich played a spellbinding grand piano solo. Five minutes later, bongos joined the fun soon to be followed by acoustical guitar. Once the telltale chords sounded, the crowd went berserk. So did TOTO.

Lead singer Fergie Fredricksen began throwing gymnastic movements into his bebop dancing. Paich left his piano bench more often and for longer periods. The entire band had a good time. As Fredricksen left the stage following the final set, he loudly said, "Now we know what we've been missing since we haven't toured in Aggie town!"

Opening act, John Parr and the Business, almost worked up the sound system bugs in TOTO. Until the final song "Don't Leave Your Mark On Me," Parr fought tooth and nail with obscene feedback, and a deaf crowd.

Being an opening act must be hard for John Parr since the band "Naughty, Naughty." But when a group can't even perform their one hit single correctly, there's little question why they're just an "opening band." The end of "Naughty, Naughty" fell apart on Parr. Attempts to save the song backfired when the crowd refused to sing on cue. Not even Parr's pick slinging could save the performance.

MSC Town Hall and B&B weiser sponsored the second show of TOTO's "Isolator" tour of the southern United States. The band, just off a tour of Japan, is touring the United States, concentrating on Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Florida. A portion of the band's show fees goes directly to the USO.

Corps of Cadets sponsors annual Military Weekend

By DOUG HALL
Reporter

The Corps of Cadets will host the second annual Military Weekend today and Saturday for students from the various military academies across the country.

Representatives from the U.S. Military Academy, the Citadel, the U.S. Air Force Academy, New Mexico Military Institute and several state ROTC programs will attend this weekend's events to obtain a first-hand look at the Corps.

Participants also will exchange ideas and will discuss their respective programs.

"We need ideas on what we can do to improve the Corps," said Jim Craig, Military Weekend chairman.

"They (the other schools) will also be able to benefit by seeing how we do things."

Lt. Col. Donald Johnson, assistant commandant of the Corps, said the weekend will offer the opportunity to compare ideas and programs.

Scheduled events include roundtable discussions and press conferences.

Yori Escalante, Corps public relations sergeant, said a press conference is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. today in 601 Rudder to introduce the cadet representatives and to explain the purpose behind the weekend activities.

Participants also will attend formations and will eat with the Corps before attending the "Combat Bash," a party with a military theme at the Lakeview Club tonight.

Saturday's activities include Corps pass-in-review at 1 p.m. at the Drill Field, a banquet featuring the history of the Corps uniforms and Military Ball with music provided by the First Cavalry Band from Fort Hood.

Albert Muller, Corps public relations officer, said he agreed with Escalante that Military Weekend will give the visiting cadets a realistic impression of what the Corps does. Both also said they hope it will dispel some of the bad press the Corps has encountered this year.

"Most military schools are wondering what is going on down here," Escalante said. "This will give them a better understanding of what A&M is like."
