Father fighting for unborn child

SAN ANTONIO — Keith Hayes may be estranged from his wife of only a few months, but he still wants a say in whether she has an abortion.

The San Antonio man has won the first round in his battle. He persuaded State District Judge James Onion to impose a temporary restraining order barring Kim Kyla Hayes from getting an abortion until a hearing can be held.

The second round is Wednesday when that hearing is scheduled in Onion's courtroom.

The case promises to be a classic confrontation between pro- and anti-abortionists, whose representatives have promised to show up. But the case also should provide a legal forum on the issue of a father's rights on abortion, attorneys say.

"A father — especially during the stage of pregnancy this lady is in — should have some say-so in whether his child is aborted," said Dave Rogers, Hayes' attorney.

"Once the child is dead, the issue is dead with it," But Gerry Goldstein, a Texas Civil Liberties Union attorney representing Mrs. Hayes, said the courts already have addressed the issue.

"The Supreme Court on more than one occasion has said since it is the wife that must bear the burden of the pregnancy, the final decision should be with the wife," he said.

In this case, the final decision will rest with Onion, who said several constitutional issues likely will be aired during the hearing.

"This is something new," Onion said last week after issuing the temporary restraining order. "I've never seen or heard of this kind of thing happening before."

Onion said he could issue a temporary injunction halting an abortion indefinitely. Or he could refuse to do so, clearing the way for Mrs. Hayes to terminate the pregnancy.

Hayes and his estranged wife, according to a petition filed last week, married Oct. 16. The document claims the woman became pregnant shortly thereafter.

The couple separated Jan. 28 and the woman told her husband of her plans to abort the pregnancy, the petition says.

"What Mr. Hayes is saying is he should be considered also," Rogers said. "She didn't make that baby by herself."

In the landmark 1973 case in which the Supreme Court ruled abortions legal, the high court was careful not to weigh the father's rights, Rogers said.

But Goldstein said the Supreme Court, a few years after the abortion ruling, struck down a state law requiring a husband's consent before an abortion could be performed.

"The American Civil Liberties Union is very concerned about the constitutional issues that arise when a husband seeks to interfere with a woman's right to decide to terminate her pregnancy," he said.

The judge's restraining order shocked Pat Smothers, spokesman for the Texas Abortion Rights League.

"I cannot imagine another judge upholding something like this," Smothers said.

But Marie Hernandez, board member of the local Right to Life Foundation, said her group is hoping and praying something good will come of it.

"We are, of course, glad that someone like him has the courage to finally stand up and have the father's view publicized," she said.

Proposals would raise TDC 1986-87 funding

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Senate budget writers considered two proposals Tuesday to increase 1986-87 spending for the Texas Department of Corrections in hopes of prompting a quick settlement of the pending prison reform lawsuit.

Prison board officials have requested $1.9 billion from the Legislature.

One of the funding proposals considered Tuesday was a revised recommendation from the Legislative Budget Board, which is made up of top legislative leaders. It totaled $717 million, $96 million more than the board's original recommendation.

The second proposal, by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, would provide the TDC with $932.4 million, $215.4 million more than the LBB's recommendation.

The Texas prison board met in executive session Monday and approved the settlement of a 12-year-old lawsuit in which a group of prisoners claimed there was overcrowding and mistreatment of prisoners in the state system.

But Chairman Robert Gunn warned the settlement would not come off without additional financial backing from the Legislature.

"We think this increase will address the issues in the court case and also some of the other priority items as identified by the TDC," Larry Kopp of the Legislative Budget Board staff told the Senate Finance Committee on Tuesday.

Jim Arnold of the LBB said his staff's latest recommendation would provide the prison system with an additional 3,000 correctional officers for the 27 state prison units.

It also calls for an increase of $50.5 million the next two years for additional health services and psychiatric care to supplement court-approved plans, Arnold said.

DISCOVER THE ADVANTAGES OF SHARP, CLEAR 35mm PICTURE-TAKING WITH THE YUNON YN-300, ONLY $19.95!

Yunon's YN-300 is a versatile, compact 35mm camera designed to capture life as it happens without the complexity usually associated with 35mm photography. Consider the simplicity of its unique aperture ring. While you adjust the exposure setting according to color-coded weather symbols, the F-stop number is automatically selected for you.

And to make picture-taking even more simple and reliable, the YN-300 delivers crisp pictures every time without the need for manual focusing. Its 50mm Optical Glass Lens provides built-in focus for maximum sharpness. Also, the direct viewfinder, rapid film advance and automatic film counter add much to the ease of taking photographs.

Inside the YN-300, you'll find a streamlined film-loading mechanism that makes loading and unloading easier and more fail-safe than ever before.

Best of all, the YN-300 shoots the same crisp pictures you would expect from a far more expensive 35mm camera. Using standard 35mm print or slide film, the YN-300 delivers everything from sharp Black and White to rich colorful prints and slides.

At only $19.95, or $30.95 with the Yunon YN-14 Electronic Flash Unit, the YN-300 includes all these fine features:

- Tripod Mount
- Leatherette Carrying Case
- Full-Length Shoulder Strap
- Protective Lens Cap
- Hot-Shoe Flash Contact
- Automatic Exposure Counter
