Aggies raise 'Glass' to toast Texas Relays

By CINDY GAY
Sports Writer

The Texas Relays were a first Glass act.

Texas A&M's Ethan Glass took to the high jump like the cow that soared over the moon, upsetting Arkansas' Bill Jasinki to reach a winning height of 7 feet, 5 inches. Glass shattered his personal best of 7-3, 3/4, and came mighty close to clearing the high jump bar with three follow-up attempts at 7-6, 3/4.

"I think he will shortly jump even higher than that," said A&M Assistant Track Coach Ted Nelson, adding that Glass will be returning to Memorial Stadium for the NCAA Championships.

The Texas A&M track team seconded that blue ribbon performance with Arturo Barrios' win in the 5,000-meters. His time of 13 minutes, 46 seconds nailed him a spot in the Texas A&M record book and in the NCAAs, 11 seconds faster than the qualifying time for the championships.

"He won it pretty handily," said A&M Head Track Coach Charlie Thomas, pleased that once again an Aggie had forced an Arkansas trackster to settle for second.

Rod Richardson's third place finish in the invitational 100-meters verified that he can fulfill track fans' great expectations. Richardson clocked a 10.16 run behind the 10.06 time of Missouri's Chidi Imoh and 10.09 of Houston's Kirk Baptiste. Baptiste had won a silver medal at the 1984 Summer Olympics behind Carl Lewis.

"Anytime you get third in the Invitational at the Texas Relays, you're running pretty good," Nelson is adding that this was Richardson's first 100-meters of the season.

Richardson sprained his ankle minutes before the race when he jumped over a rail fence.

"I kind of felt like that was reason he didn't accelerate at the finish," Thomas said.

But these weren't the only Aggies to find a place in the finals of a track meet. Francisco Oliver landed 5th in the triple jump with a distance of 51-8, 3/4 feet. Rickett exander ran the 110-meter hurdle in 14.25 seconds to finish eighth in the 10,000-meters. Huey Turner turned in a time of 38 minutes.

Texas A&M had to scratch its 400 and 800-meter relay teams because Tony Jones injured his foot in a ball practice last week.

A&M finishes sixth in Morris Williams

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Brian Watts set a tournament record with an 11-under-par 205, but his performance wasn't enough to give Oklahoma State the team title Sunday in the Morris Williams Intercollegiate Golf Tournament.

Instead, Trevor Dodds and Phillip Jonas led a charge that gave the Lamar Cardinals a one-stroke advantage over the Cowboys and made them the only team besides Texas, Houston and Oklahoma State ever to have won a Williams tournament.

Dodds and Jonas each had three-day totals of 9-under-par 207, or one shot below the old tournament record, which was held by Lindy Miller of Oklahoma State, Brandel Chamblee of Texas and Steve Russell of Houston.

The Cardinals finished with a team total of 20-under-par 844, 13 ahead of third-place Texas.

Final results of the 54-hole Morris Williams Intercollegiate Golf Tournament at Austin's Morris Williams Golf Course (par-72, 6,675 yards):
