Aid for Nicaraguan rebels

Group hears testimonies

WASHINGTON — Former CIA Director Stansfield Turner urged Congress on Tuesday to reject President Reagan's proposal to release $14 million in aid to the "Contras" in Nicaragua, calling it "a dead-end policy" in Central America.
"The Nicaraguan communists are not an immediate threat to the United States and its interests in Central America," Turner said.
Turner, who headed the agency under former President Carter, testified before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee which also heard Ray Cline, a former deputy director of the CIA who firmly supports Reagan's policy.
"If the United States turns its back on this group (the Contras) there will be moves to accommodate with communist regimes throughout the world and in Nicaragua," Cline said.
Meanwhile, Reagan, speaking to a group of religious leaders at the White House, kept up his criticism of the leftist Nicaraguan government, again accusing it of religious persecution. The president said he had also received a message from the pope "urging us to continue our efforts in Central America."

Republican and Democratic sources in the House predicted that the Contra aid plan would lose by 30 votes, despite an intensified lobbying campaign by Reagan and his allies. A close vote in the Republican-led Senate was predicted.
Under the proposal, to be voted on next week, the $14 million would go as humanitarian assistance to the Sandinista government in Managua.
But if negotiations between the Sandinistas and the Contras failed, the money would then be spent for weapons for the rightist rebels supported by the president.
Reagan met for an hour on Tuesday with House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., and Assistant Senate Majority Leader Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

Afterwards, Michel said he would explore alternatives to Reagan's proposal to get something to keep from failing.
"I reminded the president that my judgment (House Speaker Thomas P.) O'Neill has put his in concrete on this issue," Michel said, referring to a concerted Democratic campaign against the Contra aid program which began as soon as assistance in 1981.
Meeting with the religious leaders, Reagan said: "We see a variety of how to abuse religious freedom in the Sandinista regime of Nicaragua. In Nicaragua, the Sandinista regime is faced with a politically active church that although it supports the revolution, is now considered a major obstacle to complete totalitarian control."
Reagan accused the Sandinistas "actively attempting to discredit and split the church hierarchy" in Nicaragua.

Reagan changes tour plans, will visit concentration camp

WASHINGTON — President Reagan personally accepted blame today for the storm of criticism over his upcoming West German trip and said he would work in a visit to a concentration camp site.
Reagan told a group of religious leaders that it was his "mistaken impression that such a visit was outside the official agenda" of the trip next month.
Now, Reagan said, he has accepted an invitation from Chancellor Helmut Kohl to visit such a site and his staff is planning to work it into his schedule.
Reagan's remarks were greeted with applause from the group of about 200 religious leaders.

"For years I've said it, and I will say it again today, and I will say it again on that occasion: We must never forget the Holocaust nor should we ever permit such an atrocity to happen ever again," Reagan said. "Never again."
On Monday, the White House dispatched a top-level team, headed by presidential adviser Michael K. Deaver, to search out an appropriate site after a blast of controversy greeted Reagan's decision to lay a wreath at a military cemetery in Bitburg, where Nazi soldiers are buried.
Reagan said he still intended to go to Bitburg because Kohl had invited him to do so.

Reagan said he hoped that the visit would show that the United States and West Germany had turned their backs on the atrocities of war and were able "to cement 40 years of friendship" between the two peoples.
"That's why I accepted the invitation to Bitburg and that's why I'm going to Bitburg," Reagan said.
"As for the decision not to go to Dachau, one of sites of the greatest moral obscenities of that era, it was taken because of my mistaken impression that such a visit was outside the official agenda."

5th artificial heart patient better

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Doctors said Tuesday they were "very much relieved" that surgery had stopped internal bleeding in artificial heart patient Jack C. Burcham, and they resumed giving him blood thinners in hope of averting possible strokes often caused by blood clots.
Burcham, 62, remained in critical but stable condition in the coronary care unit at Humana Hospital Audubon.

Burcham's vital signs were stable after a second operation Monday to halt bleeding inside his chest, Dr. Allan M. Lansing, medical spokesman for the Jarvik-7 heart implant team said Tuesday.
"We think that everything is intact," he said.
Burcham, of Le Roy, Ill., lost at least 42 pints of blood, four times his normal body volume, after Sunday implant operation, Lansing said.

The blood loss "was much more than we would like, but it's something that we're learning from," Lansing said.
"The next 24 hours we'll be watching and waiting and, hopefully, very stable with nothing major to deal with and very little to worry you," he said.
