

ORIGINAL AGGIE MUSIC!

Texas A&M Composers Spotlight
 Sunday, April 28, 3:00 p.m.
 All Faith's Chapel

Wayne Starks
 Concert Series

Admission: $1.00 at the door

FISH RICHARDS HALF CENTURY HOUSE

Introduces:
"POOR RICHARD'S REVENGE"

Join us, among friends in our atrium-like plant filled lounge for:
HALF PRICE DRINKS
 FREE HORS D'OEUVRES LIVE PIANO MUSIC

Poor Richard's Revenge, M-F 5:00-6:30, 696-4118
 Avoid the traffic, located just south of Jersey on Wellborn Hwy.

Lunch Served
 M-F 11:30-2:30
 Elegant Yet Fast
 Entrees from $2.95

Dinner Served
 Mon.-Sat. 5:00-10:30
 Piano Bar Nightly

"If you haven't been to Fish Richard's lately, You haven't been to Fish Richard's."

THE
PERFECT FIT

Tired of wearing out your shoes looking for a job? Well, STOP! Let Olsten Temporary Services do the running for you. Olsten has temporary assignments in all areas of the workforce—office services, office automation, accounting, sales, marketing, legal support, light industrial, technical services, and even health care.

Olsten can find an assignment to fit your skills, your schedule, and your lifestyle. Even if you're leaving Texas for the summer, call us for a free listing of the 285 Olsten offices nationwide (or check the white pages of your local directory). With Olsten you have the option to work and travel.

- |             |                |                |                |
|-------------|----------------|----------------|----------------|
| Houston     | (713) 658-1150 | Midland        | (915) 683-5677 |
| Dallas      | (214) 373-7400 | El Paso        | (915) 592-5400 |
| Fort Worth  | (214) 988-1200 | Corpus Christi | (512) 992-8011 |
| San Antonio | (512) 824-8599 | Austin         | (512) 458-4266 |

We Do the Running For You.

EOE

THERE'S NEVER A FEE

M/F/H

dp 1985

Teams find motivation
 in NBA past

Playoff underdogs face
 early 2-0 series deficits

Associated Press

The Fort Wayne Pistons are only history now — but Cleveland, Phoenix and three other National Basketball Association teams can look back to them for inspiration as they resume their steep uphill climb in the first round of the 1985 playoffs.

The Cavaliers and Suns, along with the Chicago Bulls, Washington Bullets and New Jersey Nets, face the seemingly insurmountable task of rebounding from losses in the first two games of their best-of-five series.

Seemingly insurmountable, but not entirely.

It's been done — once. In 1956, Fort Wayne (the franchise moved to Detroit two years later) lost its first two playoff games to the St. Louis Hawks (who moved to Atlanta 12 years later).

The Pistons then ran off three consecutive victories to win that Western Division final, only to run into the Philadelphia (now Golden State) Warriors, the NBA's best team that season, and lose four out of five in the league final.

Last week the Cavaliers ran into the Boston Celtics, the NBA's best team during this season, and played them virtually even in the first two games, but lost 126-123 and 108-106 in Boston Garden. The series moves to Cleveland Tuesday night.

Also Tuesday night, the Los Angeles Lakers play the Suns at Phoenix. Like the Cavs, Phoenix trails its series 2-0. But unlike Cleveland, the Suns haven't come close to beating L.A., getting blown out 142-114 and 147-130 so far.

The other three teams facing elimination get an extra day to consider their situations before resuming play at home — the Bulls facing Milwaukee, the Bullets taking on Philadelphia and the Nets playing Detroit Wednesday night.

The three other best-of-five series are tied 1-1, with Dallas at Portland and Denver at San Antonio Tuesday night and Houston at Utah Wednesday night.

"We're the underdogs more than ever now," Cleveland's rookie center, Mel Turpin, said as he considered the Cavs' third game against the defending champion Celtics. "But I'll tell you what, it's sort of fun being in the role of the giant killer as long as you know you can kill the giant."

While the Cavs are thinking in terms of beating the Celtics, the Suns sound more concerned about avoiding another beating as bad as the first two administered by Los Angeles. The way they're going, the Lakers can break records for total points, assists and field-goal percentage in a first-round series.

"I guess we'll be a part of a lot of records this week," Phoenix center Alvan Adams said. "This is really demoralizing. We're only losing by about 25. If we played poorly and got a couple guys in foul trouble, we could easily be 60-point losers."

Phoenix's two top scorers — guard Walter Davis and all-star forward Larry Nance — are out with injuries, as are center-forward Rick Robey, center James Edwards and rookie forward Charles Jones.

The Nuggets, having split two games at home, face the difficult task of having to win one of the next two at San Antonio, where they haven't won since 1981, 15 games ago.

Aggies 12-strokes from gaining first women's golf title

By CHAREAN WILLIAMS
 Assistant Sports Editor

Texas A&M could wrap up its first Southwest Conference title in 1985 Tuesday when the Aggie women's golf team takes the crown in the final round of the SWC golf championships.

Through two rounds of play at Briarcrest Country Club in Bryan, the Ags held a commanding 12-stroke lead. A&M's 608-stroke total was followed by Southern Methodist University, at 620, and third-place Texas, at 625.

"Twelve strokes is not just a whole bunch," said A&M Coach Ken Holley. "It's comfortable. We have to play consistent and keep our focus on what we're doing."

"That's about what I expected. I am very pleased needless to say, always expect them to win. It doesn't always turn out that way, but I expect it."

After shooting a one-under-par 71, Aggie Patricia Gonzalez leads the individual race with a 148. A&M's Fiona Connor, Texas' Sherri Steinhauer and SMU's Martha Foyer are all tied at 152.

"I played good today," said Gonzalez Monday. "I played smart. I tried to keep the ball in play and didn't get upset when I messed up. I played a different game of golf today. I am confident. I want it so bad. I hope I play good. I am excited. We're all excited."

"But, it's easy to play well one day and then play bad the next. I don't need to play the other girls. We need to play the course."

Holley said anything can happen before 18 holes are completed. "There's no way in the world to predict who will win individually," Holley said. "Patricia has a good four-stroke lead. That's a good margin, but golf is a funny game. The lead can change quickly."

As for the other Aggie golfers, Susie Faccini shot a 76 for a 154 total. Angela Atkins had a 79 for a 156 hole total and Hollie Frizzell had a 78 in the first round, but dropped off the pace with a 86 Monday for a 164 total.

Holley said even with the bad weather the home course advantage has played a part in the Ags' success so far.

"The weather hasn't made that big of a factor," Holley said. "We've been concentrating on playing well, so we haven't really paid that much attention."

"You always know your home course better and the gallery is on your side. However, it does put added pressure on the players."

Play over the par-72 layout continues at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday and the winner is expected to be crowned by 1:30 p.m.

Gustafson has eye on Major Leagues

Associated Press

AUSTIN — After winning 900 games in just 18 seasons, Texas baseball coach Cliff Gustafson said he might now consider a coaching offer from a major league club.

"If I got a lucrative offer and a long-term contract, I would consider it," Gustafson said.

It's more than idle speculation, since he's had what he calls "soft feelers" from several clubs over the years.

In 18 UT seasons, Gustafson has won more baseball games than all but two NCAA Division I coaches — Southern California's Rod Dedeaux and Miami's Ron Fraser.

While no one can approach Dedeaux's 11 national titles or 1,304 wins, Gustafson's .828 winning percentage fashioned on a 900-186-1 record puts him in a league by himself.

"He's just amazing. He's done it (won 900) faster than anybody else in the game," said Lou Pavlovich Sr., editor of the publication Collegiate Baseball.

Dedeaux got his 900th win in his 35th year. Fraser reached that plateau this season, his 23rd. John Scolinis of Division II Cal Poly-Pomona celebrated his 900th win in his 33rd season.

As much as anything, it is Gustafson's refusal to accept losing that propels his teams. That even he best major league teams lose 60 or more games in a season bothers him greatly. He has never lost more than 17 in one year on any level.

"He even hates to lose intra-squad games, and somebody's got to lose. I guess that's his secret to winning," says Philadelphia scout Doug Way.

Gustafson accepted the job in Texas in 1968 for the lowly $11,000. Even today, after only $16,300 the year his 1971 team won his first national championship, his $48,320 salary ranks well below that of football coach Fred Whitely, $88,932, or basketball coach Weltlich at $72,306.

That troubles him less than length of his contract, which expires Aug. 31, 1985. His previous contract expired on Aug. 31, 1984.

While he does not complain about his financial situation, the long-term security bothers Gustafson, who after 18 seasons has lasted every other coach who has come on campus in 1968. The six major men's sports have lasted through 14 coaches.

The lack of security is one thing he says he might be open to a league offer, even though he said he would never leave Austin and says he considers an offer a moot possibility.

"I know what can happen to a coach if everything goes south suddenly. I've seen it happen to others," he said, not mentioning his close friend Abe Lugo, who was fired by Texas after 1982 basketball season.

"I would feel a certain amount of security with a long-term contract. I don't feel now. Unless I really get up, I think I could survive for six or seven years," he said.

DeLoss Dodds, UT athletics director, said the department is ready to lengthen the agreement with all Texas coaches.