Shootout at Briarcrest gives Ag lady golfers 1st SWC title

Conference championship by hoisting up the Ags' individual champ, Patricia Gonzales, for a ride to the nearest body of water.

Texas A&M golfers Patricia Gonzales and Fiona Conner put their clubs in the "Clint Eastwood mode" to make Coach Kitty Holley's day.

Gonzales and Conner used golf balls, not lead, to guide the Aggies in their first Southwest Conference team title. Gonzales and Conner kept it clean as they shot it out for the SWC women's individual golf crown Tuesday at the Briarcrest Country Club in Bryan.

Despite shooting a three-over-par 75, Gonzales ended the three-round, 54-hole tournament with a 223.

"Southwest Conference champions sure sounds good," Holley said. "Our girls played well from start to finish. They didn't falter and evidently didn't let the pressure affect them."

Gonzales is the team member who helps in keeping the pressure off, keeping the team loose. Known as the practical joker of the team, Gonzales is also the longest hitter and had the second-lowest stroke average in the fall with a 78.1.

Conner finished second individually at two-over-par 72 in the first round and had a total of 226. A native of England, she had the third-lowest stroke average in the fall with 80.2.

Martha Foyer of Southern Methodist finished third at 228.

The Aggies won the title with a team effort of 907. SMU was second with 921 and Texas third at 942.

Texas Christian came in fourth at 968 while the defending champion, Texas Tech, finished fifth at 983.

All in all, the Ags had three days of shooting that both Holley and "Dirty Harry" could be proud of. The Aggies will go to the NCAA National Championship in Cape Cod, Mass. May 20-27.

Astros' Mathis' notches Reds as 1st win

Astros 6, Reds 4

HOUSTON — Kevin Bass homered and drove in four runs and rookie Ron Mathis won his first major league game Tuesday night as the Houston Astros defeated the Cincinnati Reds 6-4.

Bass, who cracked RBI singles in the first and third innings, belted a two-run homer in the fifth inning off Cincinnati starter John Stuper, 2-1. It was the second home run in two nights for Bass, and his two homers matched his 1984 total.

Mathis, 1-0, took a two-hitter and a 6-0 lead into the eighth before running into problems. The Reds chased him with a walk and three hits, including a two-run single by Gary Redus, and Frank DiPino took over.

Orioles 11, Rangers 1

ARLINGTON — Storm Davis pitched a three-hitter and Rick Dempsey, Dan Ford and Mike Young homered Tuesday night to lead the Baltimore Orioles to an 11-1 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Davis, 1-0, entered the game with an 8.31 earned run average, having lasted only 13 innings in his three previous starts. He retired 19 batters in a row after the Rangers loaded the bases with no one out in the first inning but managed only one run as Larry Parrish grounded into a double play. Davis walked four and struck out four.
