With the sounds of the Fightin' Texas Aggie Band in the back-ground and the faces of proud parnts in the audience, 121 seniors received their commissions as officers in the U.S. Armed Services Saturday in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Commissioning for many of the officers marks the culmination of a college career and allows them to officially begin serving an obligation to a chosen military branch. However, ome of these officers will return to A&M to finish their degree or pursue graduate work.

Retired Lt. Gen. Ormond R. Sim-pson, United States Marine Corps, served as commissioning officer. Simpson, who also advises the d a Sim Corps of Cadets as assistant vice president for student affairs, spoke briefly on the oath of office he is-sued to each officer.

The 67-word oath is 101-yearsold, Simpson said, and serves as the first official step in a new careers for officers.

tion, nothing more . . . against all enemies, foreign and domestic."

Simpson also said the oath is imrity towards God and country.

"I welcome you to the armed services of this country," Simpson said amongst three standing ovations. "The rewards will be enormous, not monetarily, but you will be contrib-uting something worthwhile. You will have the opportunity to lead. Never forget that responsibility... My only regret is that I'll not be there serving with you."

"It has important meaning in all clauses," Simpson said. "You must support and defend our Constitu-tion, nothing more . . . against all live and work.

Simpson also said the oath is important because the officers take it under free will and must show integwhen you return, but I'll be watching you with confidence.

San Antonio, served as commanding officer of the First Wing this past year and will enter the Air Force as a pilot.

To receive the award, the cadet must have received a commission in the armed forces, have high moral character, believe in God and have a strong sense of patriotism towards country and state.

CS to sponsor free concerts

By ELIZABETH MICKEY Reporter

Get out your blankets and lawn chairs and get ready for a summer of free concerts.

The College Station Parks and Recreation Department is sponsor-ing a summer concert series with the Arts Council of Brazos Valley. All of the concerts will be held at Central Park in College Station from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Admission is free and concession stands will be available.

Susan O'Connor of the College Station Parks and Recreation Department says there has been a good Grass Band; turnout at past concerts. Attendance depends on which band is playing and what else is happening that weekend, she says.

- The series will feature: • Sunday: Alpenfest;
- May 26: Four Hams on Rye;
 June 9: Totlyn Jackson;
 June 23: C.P.R. (Calvert, Powell)

and Resnick);

July 14: New Sounds;July 28: Carter Creek Blue

• Aug. 11: Freeway Band;

• Aug. 25: Transit. O'Connor says the department puts on the concerts as a service to the public.

"It's a special event for the pub-lic," O'Connor says. "Many cities sponsor summer concerts for their citizens.
