Astronauts named as NASA prepares for more launches

Associated Press

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Thirteen new astronauts, including the youngest ever selected, were named Tuesday to the U.S. space corps, swelling the ranks to a record 103, as NASA prepares for a launch schedule of two missions monthly.

The new group of five civilians and eight military officers consists of six pilot astronauts and seven mission specialists. The oldest is a 36-year-old Marine major, the youngest a 25-year-old woman who is an astronomer at the Ames Research Center in California.

The new pilot astronauts are:
• Navy Lt. Cdr. Michael A. Baker, 31, a native of Memphis, Tenn., who is serving as an instructor at the United Kingdom test pilot school at Amesbury, England.

• Marine Maj. Robert D. Cabana, 36, of Lexington Park, Md. He was born in Minneapolis and is stationed with a Marine aircraft group in Japan.

• Air Force Capt. Brian Duffy, 31, of Niceville, Fla. He was born in Boston and is director of F-15 tests at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

• Air Force Maj. Terence T. Hendricks, 32. He was born in Bryan, Ohio, and is a test pilot at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

• Stephen S. Oswald, 33, an engineer at the Johnson Space Center near Houston. He was born in Seattle.

• Navy Lt. Cmdr. Stephen D. Thorne, 32, of Orange Park, Fla. He was born in Frankfurt-am-Main, West Germany, and is stationed at the Cecil Field Naval Air Station in Florida.

Named mission specialist astronauts are:

• Jerome Apt, 36, an engineer at the Johnson Space Center, born in Springfield, Mass.

• Army Capt. Charles D. Gemar, 29, of Martinez, Ga. He was born in Yankton, S.D., and is assigned to Hunter Army Airfield in Georgia.

• Linda M. Godwin, 32, an engineer at the Johnson Space Center who is from Cape Girardeau, Mo.

• Richard J. Hieb, 29, an engineer at the Johnson Space Center who was born in Jamestown, N.D.

• Tamara E. Jernigan, 25, an astronomer at the Ames Research Center in California. She was born in Chattanooga, Tenn.

• Air Force Capt. Carl J. Meade, 34, of Lancaster, Calif., an instructor at Edwards Air Force Base who was born at Chanute Air Force Base, Ill.

• Navy Lt. Pierre J. Thuot, 29, of California, Md. He was born in Groton, Conn., and is an instructor at the U.S. Naval Test Pilot School in Patuxent River, Md.

Heroin a problem in nation's capital

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In the shadow of the federal government, where the nation's top law enforcement officials work to combat drug trafficking around the world, the strongest heroin in the country is readily available.

"If you want to buy heroin, you go where it's easy to get," says Lt. Hugh Irwin, commander of the U.S. Park Police narcotics branch. "And everybody knows it's easy to get in D.C."

The strong heroin is killing more people than ever — nine during one weekend in March and three in one night in May.

"Some parts of this city ought to be declared a disaster area," says Calvin Lockridge, a member of the school board from Anacostia, the poorest section of the city.

District Police Chief Maurice Turner says that $190 million worth of heroin changes hands in the district each year and that 16,000 arrests for drug violations over the last two years have "not had an impact on the problem."

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., who chairs the House Select Committee on Narcotics, says, "What I don't understand is how... in this small city, by New York's standards, that we have given communities over to the drug pusher and say we are doing a great job."

Turner and others say part of the problem results from what is perceived as relatively light sentencing for drug-related offenses. Dealers believe "D.C. is lenient and you don't have to do time," Turner says.

"In Virginia and Maryland, dope peddlers know they're going to get heavy time," says Carl Jackson, special agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration's Washington field office. "Sentencing in D.C. is not that even. It sends a message that this might be the place to come and try things."
