A&M maid loves dorm residents

Ora Carter, a maid at Texas A&M, reads The Battalion while on her break in her closet in Briggs Hall.

B-CS population rises by 25 percent

Photo by ANTHONY S. CASPER

By SHERRIE COUCH Reporter

By appearance alone, Ora Carter is just another maid at Texas A&M. She's almost unnoticed as she enters

Her uniform is just like the others': maroon polyester smock, white polyester pants and black, rubber wading boots. Appearances, though, can be misleading.

Last fall Carter turned 60, but her face shows no dramatic signs of aging. And her hair is still black. There's a slump in her shoulders as she walks, and at times she looks run-down, but her smile is always

Carter married early and had five children in eight years. All of her children are grown — the youngest is 34. And, she's been divorced for the past 33 years.

In the late 1930s, it was not uncommon for poor families to take their children out of school to help with the work, and Carter was one of those children who wasn't able to finish school.

"I just got through the eighth gra" Carter said. "But I don't feel bad about not finishing school. Somebody's got to do the hard work.

"I've been working here at the University for 17 years now," Carter said as she shrugged her shoulders and laughed. "I've got nothing bet-

Day in and day out, Carter vacu-ums, cleans shower stalls, scrubs toilets and takes out the trash that 108 young women accumulate over the week. At times the trash doesn't even fit into the trash can.

During lunch, Carter usually takes a break to watch "All My Children" in the dorm lounge.

"You can always catch her taking breaks in her closet too, holding a cigarette and reading The Batta-lion," one Spence resident said. "For a while there she gave up smoking because she couldn't afford to keep buying cigarettes. But I guess she just couldn't kick the habit."

Carter said she wanted to quit smoking because her job was on the line — not because the work she was doing was below standard, but because she was getting old. She knew she couldn't afford to buy cigarettes if she lost her job.

But her job is a little more stable right now. Spence Hall residents threatened to petition for Carter's

"I like Spence," she said. "There's a bunch of good-timing girls here. They're not stuck-up or nothing like

At times Carter goes beyond her line of duty, doing extra work in the dorm. She repainted one dorm hall-way in her free time during Christmas break.

This summer, Carter is working in Dorm 3 because Spence is closed for repainting.

Carter is a self-professed worka-holic but admits the most important thing in her life will probably be her

"That'll probably be when I'm 80 years old," she said with a laugh.

Carter has her own personal closet on each of the four floors in Spence. The girls in the dorm have given her signs, cards and memo boards for messages to decorate the

On one floor, Carter left the message, "You are so neet." Though the word was misspelled, the message was clear. There's a lot of love between the dorm residents and their

Clements predicts oil boom in Texas by the year 2000

AUSTIN — Former Gov. Bill Clements predicted Tuesday that by the year 2000, Texas producers will have technology advanced enough to recover as much crude oil as the state has produced so

"It will have enormous implications for the economy of the state as well as our national security," Clements told the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association. "We're talking about in the future producing from the known reservoirs of the state the equivalent amount of oil that we have produced to date."

Much of the state government revenue in the past has come from oil and gas taxes, but that has declined in recent years due to the oil industry's economic downturn.

Clements founded SEDCO Inc., an international oil drilling firm in 1947. SEDCO merged with Schlumberger Ltd. in 1984.

Clements, who as Texas' only Republican governor this century served from 1978 to 1982, said he was making a non-partisan effort to stress the importance of the oil and gas industry to the state and

"I'm not running for anything," Clements told reporters after his speech, but he did say he thought Democratic Gov. Mark White, who defeated him in 1982, is very vulnerable.

Clements, a former deputy U.S. defense secretary, also said the nation could not afford the luxury of not having an energy

He said the nation's $63 billion trade deficit, of which about half was caused by imported oil, is a serious problem.

"It not only affects our national security from a logistical stand-point, but it affects our relationship with both Canada and Mexico," he said. "If Mexico is to recover from the doldrums it is now in, it will be through its relationship through energy with the United States.

He predicted that crude oil prices will remain relatively stable at about the "current levels and then gradually increase by about 50 percent by the year 2000."

Judge: state violating mental health order

DALLAS — A federal judge, who ruled that Texas is violating an or-der regarding the release of mental patients, said he won't take action until after he gets a community service plan from the state mental health department.

In a 12-page ruling issued Monday, U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders said the state's community mental health services are only "minimally adequate" and blamed the Texas Legislature and local governments for not providing enough money for them.

Sanders ruled that the state has been violating his year-old order that mental patients be discharged only to proper community pro-

Health and Mental Retardation has tried to comply with the order, he said, but hasn't had enough money.

The agency has not, however, been discharging mental patients before they are ready to re-enter society, Sanders said.

The judge said he must find "an appropriate remedy for failure to comply" with his order.

But Sanders said he will wait until he receives a plan next month from the mental health department, which is supposed to include a blueprint for developing community services and complying with requirements of a 1981 settlement of a classaction lawsuit against state mental ion of Bryan-College Station has isen by 25 percent to 117,400 since he 1970s, making this community e of the fastest-growing metropoln areas in the nation, according to e Census Bureau.

Census Bureau releases statistics Associated Press WASHINGTON — The popula-

The bureau reported Tuesday at some smaller metropolitan ors in his

?" I aske

ction cor

er pocket

ard

ditor

rine Hur

ter Smith

Leopolo

la Martin

newspape A&M and areas such as B-CS, with less of a population base to start with, showed even greater percentages of growth than large areas.

Florida and Texas accounted for 10 of the 11 fastest-growing metro areas, the bureau said. On a percentage basis, the bureau also listed these Texas metropolitan areas as three of the fastest growing in the nation: Midland, 113,600, up 38 percent;

Odessa, 144,500, up 25 percent and Austin, 645,400, up 20 percent. The bureau also reported that

Houston continued its phenomenal expansion to lead major urban growth in the United States

Close behind Houston was Dallas-Fort Worth, with 14.2 percent growth to bring its population to 3,348,000. It ranked tenth in both 1980 and 1984.

But San Antonio was not to be outdone. One of the 37 largest metropolises in the nation, it was one of eight that grew by 10 percent or more between 1980 and 1984.

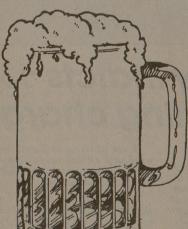

Metropolitan statistical areas are generally defined as regions of common economic interest with a city of at least 50,000 people at the center.

I wish to donate_ by students.

☐ Check Enclosed (payable to TAMU MSC)

$1.00 Margarita's

all Day Monday & Tuesday

Frozen or Rocks

4501 Texas Ave. South in Bryan 846-3696

Mr. Twain admired few things more than a well-turned note or dance. His special brand of wit and satire highlights the 1985-86 season of the Opera & Performing Arts Society of

Hal Holbrook's famous one-man presentation "Mark Twain Tonight" is just one of eight magical performances the Opera & Performing Arts Society (MSC OPAS) will bring to Bryan-College Station for the 1985-86 season. Several may be available only to season ticket

Each brings its own magic to Texas A&M's Rudder Auditorium. Make this the year you experience the magic of MSC OPAS. This year make the magic yours.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra September 12, 1985
"Leonard Slatkin and his Saint Louis Symphony Orchestra must be considered major forces on the American muscial scene."--Karen Monson, CHICAGO MAGAZINE.

The Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center October 8, 1985

"The musical success story of the generation!"--Harold Schonberg, THE NEW YORK TIMES. Hubbard Street Dance Company November 14, 1985

"...the cat's pajamas, the bee's knees, the fastest gun perfecto..."--Richard Christiansen, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. mas, the bee's knees, the fastest gun in the West, the sexiest gal in town...groovy, dreamy, peachy,

Hal Holbrook as Mark Twain Tonight! January 29, 1986

Mr. Holbrook has breathed life into Mr. Twain in this one-man show for almost 30 years. His skill at becoming the beloved story-teller of America's youth is uncanny. He is Twain. Through him relive the wonder of one of America's great writers and

The Vienna Choir Boys February 11, 1986 "Above and beyond the musical virtues of this group...they put on a heckuva good show."--John Schuster-Craig, Young Uck Kim, Violinist February 21, 1986 "...Kim's real glory is the sound he produces: an individual voice, plangent and expressive."--LOS ANGELES TIMES.

Katia and Marielle Labeque, Piano Duet March 27, 1986

The Houston Ballet performing "Peer Gynt" April 9, 1986
"...fine dancers, spirited, unashamedly popular, and very good at providing the sort of ballet a big public wants to see."—John Percival, THE LONDON TIMES.

MSC OPAS 1985-86 TICKET ORDER Mail to MSC Box Office • Box J-1 • College Station, TX 77844 • For Information, Call: 845-1234

				SEASON TICKETS
1985 - 86 Season Ticket Prices	Regular Student	Zone 2 (Orchestra or Balcony) $71.00 $56.25	Zone 3 (Balcony) $56.50 $45.00	Regular (Adult) Student (All)	Zone	Price	No. Seats	$
List my (our) name in the following manner: NAMEAPT. #APT. #				☐Charge to my Interbank MasterCard ☐Accoun			Handling AND TOTAL	2.00 Mo. Yr. Card Expires
PHONE # I choose to retain same seats as last year. (Benefactors, Guarantors and Contributors Only)				☐Charge to my VIS	Account	No.	Mo. Yr. Card Expires __of my season tickets for use Card Holder's Name_ Programs and performance dates subject to change without notice. We regret there will be no refunds or exchanges.