Mavs look to Carroll for trade

Associated Press
DALLAS — The Dallas Mavericks have approached free agent center Joe Barry Carroll for contract discussions, player personnel director Rick Sund said Monday.

Sund, appearing on a KRLD radio sports call-in show, said the National Basketball Association team had gotten permission from the Golden State Warriors to talk to Carroll.

"We're basically leaving the ball in his court," Sund said. "We have not made an offer."

Sund said the Mavericks told Carroll that if he was interested in playing for Dallas, they would like to bring him to Texas for interviews and evaluations. Neither Carroll, nor his agent Howard Slusher, have responded yet, Sund said.

"We are totally convinced that Golden State will match an offer and there will be a trade," Sund said.

Asked if that meant Dallas hoped to pursue the possibility of signing Carroll before the NBA draft June 18, Sund said, "We're dealing from strength before the draft."

Dallas has three first-round draft choices, including the eighth pick.

Sixers not considering Daly deal with Pistons

Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA — The Detroit Pistons on Monday removed coach Chuck Daly from consideration for the Philadelphia 76ers head coaching job after the Sixers refused to surrender a first-round draft choice as compensation.

Daly, who has one year left on his three-year pact with Detroit, will remain with the National Basketball Association club, the Pistons announced.

Sixers owner Harold Katz said that Assistant Coach Matty Guokas and "possibly one or two more" candidates remain under consideration to replace Billy Cunningham, who resigned last month after eight years as coach.

An annoyed Katz said that the Pistons had initially asked for two second-round draft picks to release

"Had we known (Detroit) wanted a first-round pick, we would have never discussed (a trade)."

Daly, then acted to "raise the ante after the fact."

"Had we known they had wanted a first-round pick, we would have never discussed it," Katz said.

He said the 76ers made known their position over the weekend.

In Pontiac, Mich., Pistons General Manager Jack McCloskey said, "The Philadelphia 76ers have decided to reject compensation requested by the Pistons for Coach Chuck Daly.

Therefore, Chuck Daly will continue as coach of the Detroit Pistons."

McCloskey indicated Friday that Detroit would not release Daly without the 76ers' first-round pick in exchange.

Sixers General Manager Pat Williams, who could not be reached for comment Monday, said during the weekend that the 76ers were ready to promote Guokas if the Daly deal didn't come through. He insisted there was "no timetable" for hiring a coach.

Daly, at his home in Farmington Hills, Mich., was philosophical about losing the 76ers' job.

"Obviously, I was interested," he said. "I know the Philadelphia area extremely well and I like it there. But in this business, you learn to really love where they sign your paycheck, and I like it here (with Detroit)."
