Cleveland to make Kosar's wish reality

Associated Press

NEW YORK — University of Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar, who used the small print in the National Football League rulebook to ensure that he would be drafted by Cleveland, will get his wish Tuesday when he's taken by the Browns in the NFL's 1985 supplemental draft.

Kosar, who graduated this month, will be the first, and perhaps the only player taken in the draft from among the 15 college players eligible to be chosen by the 28 NFL clubs.

He will be taken by the Browns, his favorite team, who obtained the normally worthless pick from the Buffalo Bills in a complicated and controversial trade that finally had to be upheld by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Under NFL rules, the supplemental draft is held every season for players who complete college or otherwise become eligible after the regular NFL draft at the end of April. Teams pick or pass, in the same order as the regular draft, but it is rarely of any note — the only other first-round pick was in 1981 when the New Orleans Saints took quarterback Dave Wilson of Illinois.

Kosar, who led Miami to the national championship in 1983, has played only two college seasons. But he announced last March — six weeks before the regular draft — that he planned to take enough credits to graduate this summer, and could have declared himself eligible.

In fact, the Minnesota Vikings, who picked third, exchanged picks with the Houston Oilers, who chose second, in an effort to take him in the regular draft. But simultaneously, the Browns traded with Buffalo for his rights in the supplemental draft.

The Bills and Oilers appealed to Rozelle, but he upheld the deal, effectively allowing Kosar to choose the team he wanted.

A native of Boardman, Ohio, who had said all along he wanted to play in Cleveland, Kosar predictably opted to bypass the regular draft, then completed his school work and declared his eligibility for Tuesday's session.

Under NFL rules, a team making a choice in the supplemental draft forfeits the corresponding pick in the next regular draft. Because of the trade, the Browns will forfeit Buffalo's No. 1 pick next season, but the Bills will get Cleveland's No. 1 in return.

There are 14 other players eligible for the draft, which will be conducted by telephone and telex at the league's New York office. But few if any are expected to be chosen — even in the 12th round — by teams that could just as easily sign them as free agents.

They are:

Calvin Adams, defensive back, East Carolina; Dino Bell, defensive back, Kansas; James Corazzini, kicker, El Camino Junior College; Peter Esterhuizen, kicker, Wisconsin-Platteville; Thomas Fowler wide receiver, Cal State-Long Beach; Cornell Gowdy, defensive back, Morgan State; John Grier, running back, Arizona State; Courtney Griffin, running back, Arizona; Don Jefferson, defensive back, Florida A&M; Delman Moore, defensive back, Texas Tech; Joe Rucky, tight end, Kent State; Linzey Smith, wide receiver, Florida; Ernest Warfield, running back, Weber State, and John Wilson, defensive back, Southern Illinois.

Howe's status with Dodgers still clouded

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Los Angeles Dodgers' reliever Steve Howe met with club officials Monday to discuss his mysterious absence from Sunday's game against Atlanta, but neither Howe nor the Dodgers would talk about his immediate future with the team.

Accompanied by attorney Jim Hawkins, Howe met with team officials for less than an hour at Dodger Stadium and left immediately afterward without commenting.

There was also no comment from Dodgers' officials, including owner Peter O'Malley, but they indicated an announcement would be made later regarding Howe's status with the club.

The left-handed reliever, who was suspended for the 1984 season because of cocaine abuse, was placed on the National League restricted list after missing Sunday's game. Dodger spokesman Steve Brener said he turned up early Monday, apparently at his home.

The club lost track of Howe Saturday. He was at Dodger Stadium for an afternoon game, but failed to show up that night for a Boy Scout function he had helped organize.

He still was missing Sunday, as the Dodgers beat the Atlanta Braves 4-3 in an afternoon contest.

Wimbledon's top seeds advance

Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — John McEnroe, Ivan Lendl and Chris Evert Lloyd battled their way into the fourth round of the Wimbledon tennis championships Monday as sunshine and warm weather finally arrived in London after a week of chilling rain.

McEnroe and Lendl, the two top seeds on the men's side, had little trouble with unseeded opponents and neither did Lloyd, co-No. 1 with Martina Navratilova in the women's draw.

But seventh-seeded Joakim Nystrom of Sweden and No. 11 Yannick Noah of France, both lost their matches. Nystrom lost to 17-year-old West German "wunderkind" Boris Becker in a stirring five-set match.

"This match was definitely one for my confidence," said the 17-year-old German, who twice had to break Nystrom's serve to stay in the match before coming through 3-6, 7-6, 6-1, 4-6, 9-7 in three hours, 20 minutes.

Two seeds also fell in women's singles as the grass court tournament at the All England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club began its second week with tennis rather than inclement weather the main concern.

Australia's Elizabeth Smylie shocked third-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 7-6, and Pascale Paradis of France upset No. 14 Wendy Turnbull of Australia 2-6, 7-5, 6-1. That left only two seeds in the same half of the draw with Lloyd, who beat Australian's Jenny Byrne, 6-2, 6-1.

Only seven seeds remain in the men's draw.

Becker, given a good chance of winning this prestigious tournament, ousted Nystrom 3-6, 7-6, 6-1, 4-6, 9-7, and veteran Vijay Amritraj of India, in his 14th Wimbledon, eliminated Noah 4-6, 7-6, 6-3, 7-6.

McEnroe got by qualifier Christo Steyn of South Africa 6-3, 7-5, 6-4, while Lendl finally found his game in the final two sets as he stopped Shlomo Glickstein of Israel 7-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Also advancing into the fourth round were fifth-seeded Anders Jarryd and No. 14 Stefan Edberg of Sweden, qualifier Ricardo Acuna of Chile, Danie Visser of South Africa, Switzerland's Heinz Gunthardt, Henri Lecointe of France and two Americans, Sammy Giammalva and Robert Seguso.

Women moving on were fifth-seeded Pam Shriver of the United States, who ended the hopes of veteran Virginia Wade of Britain, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2; No. 4 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria, No. 11 Steffi Graf of West Germany, Britain's Jo Durie and four Americans: No. 16 Kathy Rinaldi, Anne Smith, Barbara Potter and qualifier Molly Van Nostrand.
