Austin to restrict use of water

Associated Press

AUSTIN — City residents could be ticketed by police for a misdemeanor and fined up to $200 beginning Wednesday for violating mandatory water use rules.

The restrictions were announced by City Manager Jorge Carrasco on Sunday, after three straight days of water use above the city's 150 million gallon limit.

"The voluntary program that we have been involved in since May 1 will now be required," Carrasco said. "The major effect is that citizens will be asked to water (lawns) once every five days."

Austin, which sits along the Colorado River, has more than adequate water supplies. However, the city's wastewater treatment capacity has failed to keep pace with booming population growth.

Maximum total capacity for the city's three water treatment plants is 165 million gallons daily.

Under city rules, water use restrictions are imposed if water use tops 150 million gallons for three straight days or 157 million gallons on any one day. The city pumped 151.1 million gallons last Thursday, 156.7 million on Friday and 153.35 million on Saturday.

The mandatory conservation program restricts outdoor water use. Lawns may be watered only once every five days — and watering is prohibited between noon and 7 p.m.

The city began voluntary conservation measures on May 1. Lower-than-normal temperatures and substantial rainfall during June and early July helped delay mandatory restrictions.

But high temperatures and a lack of rain in recent weeks — the mercury reached 98 degrees Saturday and 99 on Sunday — sparked higher water use, officials said.

Science students must take exam

Any junior or senior in the College of Science who has not previously taken the English Proficiency Examination should plan to take the test August 6 unless they have completed English 301 with a minimum grade of C. Students in the College of Science are required to pass either English 301 or the test in order to qualify as a degree candidate. Students entering the College of Science under Catalog 107 or later must complete English 301 as required in their degree program.

The English Proficiency Exam will be administered by the English Department. Students in the Biology, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics Departments should register for the exam in 152 Blocker before August 1.

Co-op students need to register

Co-op students from the Colleges of Agriculture, Business, Engineering, Geosciences and Science, who are scheduled to work during the fall semester need to report to 107 Harrington to register for co-op courses. Registration is open today through July 31.

Cockatoo missing from Dallas Zoo

Associated Press

DALLAS — The way police see it, a rare palm cockatoo missing from the Dallas Zoo had no reason to leave home.

"It was a bird in paradise. It had plenty of food and water and a mate," said park police Sgt. Jimmy Billingsley. "Why would it want to escape?"

Foul play is what authorities suspect lies behind the weekend disappearance of the $10,000 bird.

Early Saturday, about 90 minutes before the zoo opened, a bird-keeper found a hole in the wire cage that held a pair of the rare creatures.

Missing was the female half of the couple, a 2-foot-tall, 5-pound bird with smoky black feathers, a long crest, rosy cheeks and a band on her right leg with the inscription FRM095.

Wildlife experts say the breed, an endangered species found only in Australia and New Guinea, is a hot item on the black market.

The cockatoos cannot be legally exported from their native lands and few are in captivity. The Dallas Zoo got two pairs in November 1983 from U.S. Justice Department officials, who seized a cache of contraband birds from smugglers.

Because the palm cockatoo is so rare, zoo officials kept one pair away from public view in hopes of getting them to breed, said Jim Murphy, curator of amphibians and reptiles for the zoo.

The purloined cockatoo was half of this secluded couple, he said.

MSC Council

Also, although the Legislature has limited minimum salary increases to 3 percent, Reynolds said University employees will receive a 4 percent "merit" salary increase.

"Between the salary increase, which had not been included in our budget, and the fact that we are obligated to pay for the retirement benefits of all of our employees out of MSC resources, those two things cost us about $84,000," Reynolds said.

To help compensate for the salary increase and the money that will be spent on retirement benefits, $45,000 was withdrawn from student service fee reserves, Reynolds said.

"In doing so, it's going to leave the reserves at ground zero," he said.

Because of this increase in student service fees for the fall semester was considered, he said.

"The state Legislature made its decision about the state budget so late that it was not possible for Student Government to reconvene, pass a student service fee increase, give that to the Board of Regents and tell students what it was going to cost to come to Texas A&M this fall," he said.

Other committee plans for the coming year include:

- A remodeled Rumours will open Sept. 1 with a seating capacity of 112.
- A two-day conference on the future in space will be held during the third week of November.
