Martin still recovering from Ranger doctor

ARLINGTON — Sideline by a partially collapsed lung, but in "good spirits," New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin remained in good condition Monday in an Arlington hospital.

New York's Billy Martin

While his team flew on to Cleveland to start a five-game series with the Indians, Martin was required by doctors to stay in Arlington Memorial Hospital for several days with a cloud over his immediate future.

"He will be treated and have two to three days' bedrest," Joe Safety, the Yankees' media director, said in a statement issued in New York. "He is in good spirits and at the end of the rest, his situation will be evaluated."

A hospital spokesman said, "We're listing Martin in good condition right now, but he may be hospitalized until the weekend for observation and rest. He needs to be kept quiet. It might not be until Friday before he is released, in order to give the puncture wound time to heal."

Safety said Martin was examined Monday morning by a respiratory specialist, who said the Yankee manager had suffered a "25 percent collapsed lung" as the result of an injection for back spasms by a doctor

Sunday that punctured one of his lungs.

Martin had left Sunday's game against the Texas Rangers in the second inning complaining of back spasms and was taken to the Arlington Stadium first aid station and given an injection by Dr. B.J. Mycoskie, the Rangers' team doctor.

A short time later, Martin had more problems.

"Martin experienced problems with breathing and he complained of shortness of breath," Safety said. "He was given injections at the park, and when the injections were administered, the problem of a possible lung puncture arose and at this point he was taken for X-rays."

Mycoskie said the back spasms affected Martin's right side just below the shoulder. Shortly after the injections were given, Martin complained of chest pains, Mycoskie said, and he ordered Martin taken to Arlington Memorial Hospital for X-rays.

The X-rays showed a small perforation in the lung, which caused air to come between the chest wall and the lung, the doctor said.

Martin was back in the dugout in the sixth inning, and was seen in the Yankees' dressing room shortly after the team's 8-2 loss to the Texas Rangers going over lineups for upcoming games with his coaches. But he was said to be in considerable pain and returned to the hospital rather than his hotel room.

"I guess I misjudged the thickness of Martin's wall," Mycoskie said. "Usually people associated with baseball have a lot more thicker chest wall."

Mycoskie said the injury was "not that serious" but added that Martin would have taken a risk by flying to Cleveland with his team.

Major League talks get down to nitty gritty

Associated Press

NEW YORK — More than eight months after negotiations began, the two sides in major league baseball's labor negotiations said Monday they finally are ready to move on to the major issues — one week before the strike deadline.

"Subject to working out the final contract language, I think what we have done today is to reach agreement on the overwhelming majority of the less significant issues," Don Fehr, the player union's chief negotiator, said following a two-hour meeting with management.

"We will try over the next 12 to 18 hours to get them down on paper and, beginning tomorrow afternoon, we'll go back to the remaining issues," said Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Players Association.

The remaining issues, which include multimillion dollar proposals on pensions and salary arbitration, have been held in limbo since the two sides began work on a collective bargaining agreement last Nov. 14.

Oilers' veteran requests trade

Associated Press

SAN ANGELO — Houston Oilers veteran linebacker Gregg Bingham, after being told by Oilers head coach Hugh Campbell not to work out with the team Monday, asked to be traded, citing "irreconcilable differences" with Campbell.

The outspoken Bingham, who had started 173 games over a 12-year career, said he would return to Houston and await word on a trade.

"Saturday, just before practice, Hugh Campbell asked me to request a trade," Bingham said. "The reasons are personal. Let's put it this way, there were irreconcilable differences between him and I that had been brewing for a long time."

Campbell was not immediately available for comment. Bingham started training camp last week on the second team for the first time in his pro career, playing behind Avon Riley, who was moved from an outside linebacking position to Bingham's inside position.

"I'm not going into what those differences are and I wish everybody wouldn't pursue the gory details because I don't think it would accomplish anything and I'll leave it at that," Bingham said.

"I thought it would be in the best interest of the Houston Oilers for me to do this."

Bingham, who has led the Oilers in tackles for 10 of his 12 seasons with the team, was named as an alternate for the Pro Bowl last season.

But when he reported to training camp, he was on the second team. "Am I surprised?" Bingham asked. "I sort of had an inkling when I went from one vote in the Pro Bowl in December to second string without even putting on a jersey."

Bingham said "our people here" told him to continue working out with the team until a trade had been made but that Campbell told him Monday not to work out with the team.

"I guess it is a little strange," Bingham said. Bingham said his biggest disappointment was that he wouldn't get to finish his career with the Oilers.

"I always envisioned going to the stadium for that last game," he said. "I won't get that day in the Astrodome and it puts excess pressure on my wife and family, but it's been brewing since January."

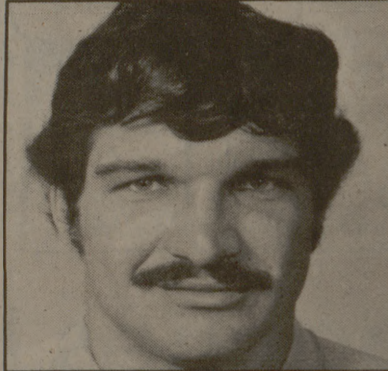

Bingham said he had pleasant relationships with most segments of the Oiler organization.

"I've been a Houston Oiler for 13 years now," he said. "I enjoy the people, the management, I enjoy the players and fans. It's sort of an unhappy ending to a playing relationship."

Bingham apparently has fallen victim to the Oilers youth movement that also threatens to engulf linebacker Robert Brazile, who showed up on the third team in the team's latest depth chart behind Johnny Meads.

Bingham, who signed a contract for the 1985 season earlier this year, said retirement was out of the question at this point.

The Oilers reportedly were trying to work a trade with the Los Angeles Raiders for Bingham, who said he would like to go to a team that has a chance to win the Super Bowl.

NEW AND EXCITING CHANGES
The Intramural-Recreational Sports Program has undergone some changes during the summer. All of the changes will hopefully have a positive effect on the programming.
STAFF CHANGES
On July, 1 1985, Eric Hunter, Assistant Director for team Sports left the department to take on the job of Assistant Director of Campus Recreation at the University of West Florida in Pensacola, Florida. Eric was with the Intramural-Recreational Sports Department at TAMU for five years. We wish Eric the best of luck in his new position and are sorry to see him leave TAMU.
Some current staff members have taken on new duties within the department. Tom Reber, formerly Assistant Director for Personnel, has taken over the Team Sports area. Mike Waldron has moved into the Assistant Director for Personnel position while Chris Koperniak takes over as Coordinator for Personnel. A search is on to fill the vacant position of Minor Team Sports Coordinator and we hope to have the new staff member aboard before school starts.
The Intramural-Recreational Sports Department is looking toward another successful year of programming.

Softball playoff action begins Sunday, August 3, 1985 at the Penberthy Intramural Complex.

INTRAMURAL CALENDER HANDBOOKS
The 1985-86 Intramural Calender/Handbook will be available on Wednesday, August 1. Come by the Intramural Office, Room, 159 Read Building for your free copy.

PLAYOFF SCHEDULES
The playoff schedules for summer session II will be available as follows:
Basketball Triples
Tuesday, July 30 after noon
Volleyball Triples
Wednesday, July 31 after noon
Softball
Thursday, August 1 after 2 p.m.

COMPUTER SCHEDULING
Implemented this second session is the computer program used to help schedule the intramural program. This program will assist in keeping track of the point system and other vital records for the program.
One other important feature of the program is the inputting of rosters. This feature of the program allows the Intramural-Recreational Sports Department to identify those individuals who are playing on more than two teams which is against the program's policies.
This program will help the staff in many of their administrative duties. Tom Reber, Assistant Director for Team Sports is looking forward to working with the program. It is hoped that the program will streamline many of the procedures for the participants.

SUMMER SESSION II INTRAMURALS
Intramurals for the second summer session have progressed nicely. All sports are moving into playoffs this week.
Basketball Triples had a smooth season with 25 teams entered in regular season play. Play ends for the regular season on Monday, July 28. Playoffs begin on Wednesday, July 31. The playoff schedules will be ready Tuesday, July 29 at noon.
The second summer session softball tournament is also nearing an end. The 99 teams entered in the regular season, which ends Tuesday, July 30, are preparing for playoffs which begin Sunday, August 3. The schedules for those players will be available in the Intramural-Recreational Sports Office, Room 159 Read Building after 2 p.m.
In the event there is any rain during the next couple of weeks, all teams should check the schedule as rain-outs will effect the entire tournament. To find out if games have been rained out on a particular evening, teams may call the Rainout and Information Number at 845-2625
