Trio claims U.S. responsible for problems caused by UFO

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Three people who contend the sighting of an UFO caused them medical problems may get their day in court if a federal judge decides their $20 million lawsuit against the government should be set for trial.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling met with attorneys for both sides Tuesday and said he will decide if the case will go to trial or be dismissed.

According to the suit, Betty Cash, 57; Vickie Landrum, 62, of Dayton, Texas; and Ms. Landrum's 12-year-old grandson, Colby Landrum, thought they were entering another dimension on the night of Dec. 29, 1980.

They reported they saw a diamond-shaped object floating in the sky in front of their car.

The trio stopped along a lonely stretch of Farm to Market Road 1485 near Huffman and got out to view the UFO. They say their initial curiosity turned to terror when flames started spewing from the bottom of the UFO and heat began radiating from the hovering object.

Cash, who now lives in Birmingham, Ala., said she watched the object outside the car for about 10 minutes while the other two retreated. The object then headed north accompanied by about 23 military-type helicopters, the plaintiffs said.

The three contend the sighting triggered medical problems and have asked for $20 million in damages from the United States. They charge the government was negligent for letting the alleged experimental aerial device fly over a road.

The medical problems started immediately, Landrum said, including blisters, hair loss, dizziness, and headaches. To this day, Landrum says she cannot go outside in the sun.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Frank Conforti said the federal courts have no jurisdiction over the matter because it cannot be proven that the government had control over the flying object.

But New York attorney Robert Gersten said the presence of military helicopters indicates the government knew about the sighting whether or not it was responsible. Thus, it had a duty to warn people, he said.
