Zenith Art Gallery to open

By MOLLY PEPPER

Twelve local artists will open a contemporary art gallery in Bryan today. The gallery will house contemporary arts of all media and styles with representative pieces from each of the artists.

The artists say they hope the Zenith Art Gallery will increase awareness of the arts in the Brazos Valley while providing exhibition opportunities for working artists. The gallery, named after Zenith Television, which occupied the building before, is supported solely by the member-artists.

"One purpose of the gallery is to provide an alternative viewing space for works that you're not likely to see hanging in town," member-artist John Fry said.

Each artist will have exhibit space in the gallery year-round and be featured in special exhibits at regular intervals throughout the year.

Terry Hart, one of the artists, came up with the idea to start the gallery and contacted the other artists. Each artist pays monthly dues to keep the gallery open but is allowed to keep any profit made from his art.

No commission is charged on the work, which makes it considerably less expensive than work bought from privately-owned galleries where owners add their commission to the artist's price. Prices in the gallery range from $25 to $400 with several pieces costing in the thousands.

The gallery is located at 713 South Main in Bryan. It will be open Wednesday to Friday from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Member-artists are Donald Chambliss, Samia Chaudhary, Doug Duryea, John Fry, Gary Hart, Terry Hart, Larry McCain, Carol McCormick, Ellen Moore, Ken Manthei and Rusty Reid.

The idea of collecting recipes and publishing a cookbook was born at a monthly meeting luncheon, Leissler said. Seven thousand copies later, the hard bound, 384-page cooking companion is now in its second printing.

"We've sold beaucoup of them," said Frank Catalena, manager for trade and reference books at the Texas A&M Bookstore.

Catalena believes the colorful graphics on the cover and the "Hullabaloo" title have boosted the book's sales. The bookstore has sold over 700 copies.

Before the hungry reader reaches the collection of over 6,000 recipes, the cookbook whets his appetite with 21 pages of the "Flavors of Aggie-land," detailing the history and significance of everything from the Aggie Band and the Academic Building to Elephant Walk and Silver Taps.

A section dubbed "Celebrities and Friends" has enticed Ronald Reagan, Tom Landry, Dr. Shelby Metcalf and Reveille to contribute their favorite dishes. Several students say this combination of Aggie traditions and Texas treats is a proven perfect gift for family and friends.

Excerpts from the "Hullabaloo" cookbook have been selected to appear in another cookbook entitled "Best of the Best in Texas," which is soon to be published, Leissler said.

She added that the Dallas club with its 432 members is one of 68 federate member A&M mothers' clubs across the state, boasting a total membership of over 4,500 women.

Houston area live sex show will continue despite raids

Associated Press

HOUSTON — A live sex show will be continuing at a Houston adult entertainment club despite repeated police raids, the manager of the recently opened club says.

"It would appear to me that we're being picked on," James Clark, manager of the Follies Bergere, said Wednesday night.

Houston Police Vice Squad Sgt. C.L. Simmons said officers have no right to shut the club, but can go inside, watch the performances and make arrests if a public lewdness ordinance is violated.

On Wednesday night, about seven patrons paid $25 apiece to watch a show that includes an act in which a person dressed in a gorilla suit appears to have sex with two women on stage.

"The quality of the entertainment we have is certainly far above any other place in town offering nude entertainment," Clark said.

"We're going to take administrative action against their permit," said Don Wollard, senior agent at the commission's Houston office.

City Councilman Frank Mancuso, whose southeast Houston district includes the club, said he wondered if the city laws were tough enough to block the performances.

"If our ordinance doesn't stop this kind of thing, we'd better go back to the drawing boards," he said.

One of the participants in the sex show, Teresa Brandenburg, 24, said the act was not obscene.
