Pageant's talent unusual for 1985

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. - The usual Miss America talent fare of singers, dancers and piano players will be jazzed up this year when Miss Michigan breaks a 4-inch-thick piece of concrete with her foot and walks on broken glass.

Other unusual talent selections include a comic monologue by Miss Alaska, clog dancing by Miss South Carolina, down-home fiddle playing by Miss Texas, and presentation of an original commentary on the impact of advertising by Miss District of Columbia.

Those who selected talents less familiar to pageant audiences said they were only doing what they do best. But some acknowledged that there might be a strategic purpose behind their choice

"It will help me stand out," Alecia Rae Masalkoski, 23, of Muskegon, Mich., said of the opening of her karate performance, in which she'll stomp across a bed of broken glass to demonstrate her powers of concen-

'You feel it," she said. "It's a little

But she said she thinks the pag-eant is ready for a Miss America with a black belt.

"In the '80s, women can be strong and capable of defending them-selves and be feminine at the same time," said the woman who was the Midwest karate champion at age 16. Miss South Carolina, Sherry Annette Thrift of Westminster, said she began clog dancing 14 years ago after seeing former world champion Bill Nichols, who now lives in Wahalla, S.C., perform in her home-The 1975-78 female world champion will perform to the tune of "Are You From Dixie?" She said clogging, especially popular in the Appalachians, can be compared to sic and a faster style.

"Where I'm from . . . everybody does it," the Clemson University graduate said.

Miss Texas Jonna Fitzgerald, 21, of Greenville will abandon her many years of classical violin training and "fiddle" instead. She will play a med-ley of "Csardas" and "Orange Blossom Special.

Miss Michigan plans to break a 4-inch-thick piece of concrete with her foot and walk on broken glass during the up-coming Miss America pageant.

Miss Alaska, Kristina Christo-MISS Alaska, Kristina Christo-pher-Taylor, 20, of Anchorage, said she could have performed a ballet or jazz dance or played the flute. But she decided to portray an old, com-plaining woman in "Scenes from American Life" by A.R. Gurney Jr.

Asked if she thought it was risky to act in a pageant whose winners have largely been vocalists and instrumentalists, she said: "It's what I do best. My good talent is acting. It would be ridiculous to change to something else."
However, Miss Nevada, Sonja

Nall, 23, of Sparks, said she did consider how to mold her talent in classical ballet so she could grab the attention of the judges and audience.

Miss District of Columbia, Cherie A. Ward, 22, wanted to keep the details of her act a secret, but described her composition as an original drama concerning how television controls the mind through advertising.

"I'm a part of it," she said. "That's all I'm willing to reveal."

Patient exits isolation hooked on TV soaps

Associated Press

VICTORIA - Leukemia patient Steven Akin said an experimental procedure using his own marrow "seems to have taken hold."

But Akin said the 42 days he spent in a germ-free isolation room at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston left him hooked on television soap operas. However, while in isolation at the hospital, Akin said he contracted a fungus infection. He received transfusions of white blood cells from his sister, Winna Miller of Clear Lake, and John Davis, of Schiller Park, Ill.

Davis and another sister, Barbara Davis of Green Bay, Wis., were found in March during a nationwide search for Akin's long-lost siblings and a possible bone marrow donor Tests eventually showed neither was compatable for a transplant.

In July, Akin received an injection of his own bone marrow, which had been removed last year, frozen and stored until doctors were ready to

Refugee surrenders after 20-hour standoff

Associated Press

DALLAS - Charges were pending Tuesday against a Nicaraguan refugee who held off police for almost 20 hours before surrendering, Police investigator Hollis Edwards said police rushed the man's north-west Dallas apartment Monday af-ternoon after firing several charges of tear gas into the apartment.

Edwards said police were fired at several times, but no officers were shot. Two officers did suffer minor injuries while firing tear gas charges.

The standoff began Sunday evening when relatives called police, saying the 20-year-old man was playing with a shotgun he had bought a veek ago. One relative said the man had said he was afraid the Sandinista government in Nicaragua was after him. Edwards said

During the standoff, the man came to the front door several times and pointed his gun at police officers, he said
