A lethal injection

Rumbaugh, 18, executed because of teenage crime

Associated Press

HUNTSVILLE — Charles Rumbaugh was put to death by poison injection early today for murdering a jeweler when he was 17 years old, the first execution in more than two decades for a crime committed by someone under the age of 18.

Rumbaugh, 28, was pronounced dead at 12:27 a.m. CDT, said Jim Mattox, the state attorney general.

Hours before his death, Rumbaugh was "cutting jokes and laughing" as he visited with friends and relatives in a cell a few feet from the death chamber, said corrections department spokeswoman Sarah Grisham.

"I believe in reincarnation. Whatever I did in my previous life must have been pretty bad to deserve this. Maybe when I come back next time, I'll have learned something."

Amnesty International, which opposes capital punishment, had protested Rumbaugh's execution, saying it violated international agreements — never ratified by the U.S. Senate — that bar execution of people convicted of crimes committed when they were under 18.

"What that has to do with the death penalty, I don't know," Rumbaugh said a week ago in his last interview with reporters. "It's not going to have any effect."

"I believe in reincarnation," he said. "Whatever I did in my previous life must have been pretty bad to deserve this. Maybe when I come back next time, I'll have learned something."

Nine other prisoners in Texas awaiting execution for juvenile crimes.

Texas had the last such execution on May 7, 1964, when James Andrew Echols was executed for a crime committed when he was 17.

Rumbaugh, who was convicted of robbing and killing Amarillo jeweler Michael Fiorillo in 1975, had tried to kill himself and had physically attacked law officers in one of his four stays of execution. He had ordered attorneys not to seek a third stay of execution.

Tichenor Media acquires Chicago station

Associated Press

HARLINGEN — Tichenor Media System Inc., a major group operator of Spanish-language radio stations based in Harlingen, has acquired Chicago station WIND-AM for $6.85 million, McHenry T. Tichenor Jr., president of TMS, said Tuesday.

The purchase of WIND, a 5,000 watt station currently owned by Group W, Westinghouse Broadcasting and Cable, Inc., is subject to approval from the Federal Communications Commission.

"Our very positive working relationship with Group W Radio, which began with their purchase of KQXT, San Antonio, from our company last year, has made our acquisition of WIND possible," Tichenor said.

TMS owns and operates Spanish language stations KCOR-AM, San Antonio; KLAT-AM, Houston; KGBT-AM, Rio Grande Valley.
