Forecasters predicting that Gloria will die

Associated Press
MIAMI — Tropical Storm Gloria, if it does what most storms of its time and place do, probably will veer north out of the central Atlantic Ocean and die over colder northern waters, forecasters predicted Wednesday.

But they also cautioned it might roar 3,200 miles across the ocean and reach the United States as a full-blown Cape Verde storm.

"All we can do is watch it," said forecaster Gil Clark at the National Hurricane Center in suburban Coral Gables. "This time of year, most of them turn up into the North Atlantic. It'll take several days and things can change very rapidly, so we can't say whether it's going to make it."

At 6 p.m. EDT, Gloria was about 950 miles west of the Cape Verde Islands, and its center was near latitude 15.3 north, longitude 39.5 west and moving west at 20-25 mph. Maximum sustained winds were 40 mph.

The seventh tropical storm of the 1985 Atlantic hurricane season developed Tuesday off the Cape Verde Islands, off the northwest coast of Africa.

Cape Verde storms like Gloria typically are the largest and cause the most damage because they "have the whole Atlantic to develop," Clark said. But he said few Cape Verde storms survive the Atlantic crossing this late in the season, although short-term conditions remained favorable for Gloria to strengthen.

Meanwhile, Gloria's slightly stronger sibling, Fabian, continued spinning harmlessly northeastward across the Atlantic.

Fabian, which developed earlier Tuesday, was about 700 miles east of Bermuda near latitude 32.0 north, longitude 53.0 west and moving east-northeast at 15-20 mph at 6 p.m. EDT, the hurricane center said.

Maximum sustained winds were 60 mph and they posed a threat only to shipping, Clark said.

Six Americans remain prisoners in Lebanon; families discouraged from making comment

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A librarian, two educators, a priest, a journalist and a diplomat are the six Americans still being held hostage in Lebanon now that the Rev. Benjamin Weir has been released.

The families have been discouraged by the administration from making public comments or releasing the contents of letters they've received from the captives, relating the dire demands from their kidnapers.

"They also tell us they won't negotiate with terrorists and don't interfere in the affairs of other governments," Peggy Say, Anderson's sister, noted last week. "Well, that insults our intelligence. We want our men home, whatever it takes."

One of the hostages, William Buckley, a political officer for the U.S. embassy in Beirut, has been captive since March 18, 1984, longer than any of the others seized by radical Shiite Muslims in hopes of bartering their lives in exchange for comrades imprisoned in Kuwait.

Buckley, 56, a native of Medford, Mass., and a former librarian, Army captain and building contractor, is a bachelor and one of the State Department's own.

Weir, released over the weekend under circumstances still not fully known, was kidnapped on May 8, 1984. He is the second of his group to be freed; Jeremy Levin, former Beirut bureau chief of the Cable News Network, was kidnapped on March 7, 1984. He broke away from his captors on Feb. 13 this year in what he now believes may have been an escape they deliberately allowed.

Weir and Levin, like the still-imprisoned Buckley, had long surpassed the 444 days of captivity endured by Americans held hostage in Iran.

Peter Kilburn, 60, a librarian at American University, disappeared in Beirut on Dec. 3, 1984, and the shadowy group called the Islamic Jihad later claimed responsibility. But subsequent communications and threats by the militants have not mentioned him and friends and officials fear for his condition. The university said he suffered "grave" ailments, including heart and artery disease.

Terry A. Anderson, 37, the chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, was kidnapped by gunmen on March 16, 1985. Anderson, a graduate of Iowa State University, worked at AP bureaus in Tokyo and Johannesburg before being assigned to Beirut.

The Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, 50, was seized on Jan. 8 this year. He is a Roman Catholic priest from Joliet, Ill., and directed the church relief services in Lebanon, serving both Christians and Moslems.

Jenco's sister, Mae Mihelich, said Wednesday that Weir's release means "we're going to fight harder. If they can do it for one, we're going to make sure they release all the other six."

David Jacobsen, 54, administrator of the American University Hospital, was seized May 18 as he walked across the campus to work. A resident of Huntington Beach, Calif., he had taken the hospital post the previous December, telling a reporter that "I know I cannot do anything dramatic to improve the situation" in Lebanon, "but my presence is a symbol of hope."

Thomas Sutherland, 54, was acting dean of agriculture at the university when he was abducted June 11 in what actually may have been an attempt to kidnap Calvin Plimpton, the school's president. Sutherland had used Plimpton's car to ride from the Beirut airport after Plimpton, scheduled to return that day from London, had delayed his arrival. Sutherland was on leave from Colorado State University and had worked in Beirut for two years.

West Germans unintentionally aid defectors

Associated Press

BONN, West Germany — The government rejected a request to tap the telephone of a couple who defected to East Germany, although the husband had been suspected for years, an Interior Ministry official said Wednesday.

The defections of Herbert and Herta-Astrid Willner were announced Tuesday. She was a secretary in Chancellor Helmut Kohl's office and he worked for a foundation linked to a party in the conservative government coalition.

West Germany's growing spy scandal began early in August with the first of several defections and there are increasing demands that Interior Minister Friederich Zimmerman resign. One defector was Hans-Joachim Tiedge, the man in charge of catching East German spies.

Hans Neusel, the ministry official, told a news conference that Herbert Willner had been under surveillance sporadically for 12 years and Tiedge, who defected Aug. 19, was in charge of the case.

He said Kohl was informed Aug. 28 that Mrs. Willner was being watched because her husband was suspected of spying for communist East Germany, but agreed with ministry officials that there was not enough evidence to justify tapping the couple's phone or reading their mail. Mrs. Willner, 45, was a secretary in the domestic affairs department of the chancellery.

By that time the Willners were out of the country. They left Aug. 12 for a vacation in Spain and are believed to have gone to East Germany at the end of the month, Neusel said, adding that Tiedge may have warned them.

Hans-Juergen Foerster, a spokesman for chief federal prosecutor Kurt Rebmann, said a search of the Willners' apartment revealed equipment that could be used for spying, including a container suitable for concealing microfilm, sensitive documents and a large amount of money.

The Willner case is the first time a spy has been found in the chancellery since Guenter Guillaume, a top aide to Chancellor Willy Brandt, was exposed in 1974. Brandt resigned and now is chairman of the opposition Social Democrat Party.

"Mrs. Willner worked in the nerve center of the government. We are happy that (the East Germans) have lost an agent in the chancellery through her defection, Neusel said.

Bonn's counter-intelligence agency, the Office for the Protection of the Constitution, asked the Interior Ministry on May 17 for permission for the special surveillance, he said.

West German authorities announced Tuesday that the Willners had written letters saying they had defected.

Willner worked at the Friedrich Naumann Foundation, which is linked with the Free Democratic Party, junior partner in the Christian Democratic chancellor's coalition.

Rebmann, the federal prosecutor, said Willner belonged to East Germany's Communist Party before immigrating to the West in 1961.

His wife had worked in the chancellery since 1973.
