Sherrill says distractions may be with Aggs to stay

By TRAVIS TINGLE
Sports Editor

A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill

The in-house investigation of charges against Texas A&M quarterback Kevin Murray won't stop being a distraction to the Aggies in coming weeks Coach Jackie Sherrill said Saturday night after A&M's 31-17 win over Northeast Louisiana.

"There's no question that the distraction part is really going to get bigger and bigger and bigger," Sherrill said during a candid interview with seven reporters who jammed into a small office in the Aggie dressing room.

"A good football team has to get through all that," Sherrill said. "There's nothing you can do about it. You just have to live with it and go about your business."

"I didn't have the time this week to put my arm around them (the players) and get them all fired up. The players prepared and won this one (against NLU) by themselves."

Sherrill centered most of his comments, some off-the-record, on the questions still surrounding charges that surfaced Tuesday on Dallas' WFAA-TV that Murray received a car and cash from prominent Aggie alumnus Rod Dockery.

Sherrill indicated that A&M must take certain actions before the NCAA and the Southwest Conference pick up where the in-house investigation leaves off.

"We need to establish the reason behind the sources (the former employees of the leasing company, Pelco Inc., which Dockery owns) — their motives, their credibility," he said. "You've got a soap opera here."

"We need to establish the facts. We're going to get all the information and give it to the NCAA the same type of violations Murray is being accused of.

The six players, one of which was All-America tailback Kenneth Davis, admitted to taking cash payments from an Horned Frog booster. The money was accepted while the players were being recruited by TCU's previous coach, F.A. Dry, now an assistant under Grant Teaff at Baylor.

The TCU situation, coupled with the 3-year probation already placed on the SMU football program, prompted Dallas Morning News sports columnist Randy Galloway to ask Sherrill quite frankly, "what's happening to the Southwest Conference?"

"It's (the SWC) not any different than any other conference. I know, because I've been in and coached-in just about every one," Sherrill said. "We're (the SWC) one of the cleanest."

"People think, 'Oh my god. What are we going to do about college athletics? Well, it's a lot better than it was when I was playing 20 years ago (at Alabama)."

Sherrill clarified by saying no teams put on probation during the '40s, '50s and '60s, could only expect to see "a few lines" appear in the newspapers.

Today, he said, NCAA rule violations make front page news for weeks on end.

Sherrill said the extensive coverage stems from a bigger and more complicated problem. He said that just because an athlete has been trained for 15 years of his life to play football in front of 70,000 people, doesn't make him a celebrity.

"We've made personalities out of all these kids," he said, "and I say 'kids' because they are. We make personalities out of these kids before they have a chance to become a person."

ARLINGTON — Mike Mason scattered six hits and struck out while Pete O'Brien went 3-for-3, including a homer, and drove in the runs Sunday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Seattle Mariners 6-0.
