TCU football alum says former coach created slush fund

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — A Texas Christian University booster says former TCU football coach F.A. Dry approached him about setting up a slush fund of $7,500 a month for players, according to a published report.

Morris "Snake" Bailey, a financial contributor to the football program and member of the TCU Sports Hall of Fame, said he was approached by Dry about setting up such a fund in 1980, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Monday.

Six football players have been suspended from the TCU team for accepting payments, a violation of NCAA rules.

TCU coach Jim Wacker suspended the six players Thursday night, after learning they had received cash payments from TCU booters. The players were Kenneth Davis, an All American tailback, Egypt Allen, Gary Spann, Gerald Taylor, Darron Turner and Marvin Foster.

Davis finished fifth in Heisman Trophy voting last season and was expected to be considered again this season.

Unidentified sources with ties to TCU's athletic department told the Star-Telegram that Dry and his staff initiated the idea of a slush fund for players, but Dry has denied the allegations.

Former TCU Coach F.A. Dry

"That's totally a fabrication," said Dry, who is now offensive line coach at Baylor. "I can't confirm the activities of someone else, but this looks like somebody is trying to get at me or use me to cover something up."

Bailey said he was angered by a news story in which Dry said he was not involved in any cash payments to his TCU players.

"I was going to call the (TCU) chancellor (William Tucker) on Monday," Bailey said from his Amarillo home. "I wanted to come to Fort Worth, if Bill Tucker wanted me to, and have a news conference and tell everything, that F.A. Dry and (former TCU assistant coach) Bob Junco started the whole thing at TCU, and you can put that in the headlines," Bailey said from his Amarillo home.

"He wanted to know if I would put together a slush fund of $7,500 a month," Bailey said. "That's $90,000 a year, cash."

Bailey said he told Dry that "I wouldn't even do that for my wife."

Bailey refused to say who did start the slush fund or if he was a contributor to it. Fort Worth oilman Dick Lowe has acknowledged that he made payments to the players.

Bailey defended Lowe.

"I'd like to see the people get off Lowe's case," Bailey said. "All Lowe was trying to do was help F.A. Dry. He wouldn't do that again. And if (Baylor football coach) Grant Teaff is the type of guy he professes to be, he'll fire F.A. Dry (on) Monday, because Dry is the one that started all this at TCU."

The unidentified source said the slush fund was initiated by Dry and his staff in 1980 and was operated by alumni until 1983, when Dry was replaced by Wacker.

The six players suspended by Wacker had been receiving cash payments before Wacker's arrival and continued to receive payments. Wacker said he did not know about the payments until last week.

Dry said Sunday night he knew nothing about the slush fund. He denied any ties to Bailey.

"I never had any dealings with 'Snake' Bailey," Dry said. "I don't know what he's talking about. If he's trying to use me to cover up activities that have happened at TCU, then he's completely and totally in error."

Junco, now an assistant coach at Pittsburgh, also denied Bailey's charge late Sunday evening.

"I don't know anything about it (the slush fund)," Junco said. "If he has an ax to grind with F.A., fine. But I don't know anything about a slush fund at all."

Junco said he recalled only one brief meeting with Bailey, when the Horned Frogs were in Lubbock for a football game against Texas Tech.

"I don't even really know the man," Junco said. "I just knew him to say, 'hi.' That's all."

Dry said he also had very few dealings with Bailey, a standout on Horned Frog football teams from 1946 to 1950.

"I've just not had that many conversations with the man," Dry said. "I didn't have enough contact to be his friend or enemy. I don't know why he'd attack me."

"This is the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard of for a man I've only seen four times, maybe five, and never had a conversation with concerning the recruiting of athletes. This man must be dreaming up this junk."
