2 men charged with murder of San Antonio banker's wife

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO - Police Wednesday, acting on information provided by an informant, arrested two men and charged them with capital murder in the extortion slaying of a banker's wife.

John Lawrence Rogers, 31, and Lesley Lee Gosch, 30, both of San Antonio, were each charged with capital murder at an appearance before City Magistrate Luther Coulter Wednesday. Bond was denied.

The men were expected to be moved from the Alamo Heights Police Department to the Bexar County Jail Wednesday afternoon.

The suspects were arrested at an apartment complex in northwest San Antonio where they both lived, according to Alamo Heights Police Chief Roger Terry.

They are accused of the shooting death last week of Rebecca Jo Patton, 42, who was found gunned down at her home in the fashionable Alamo Heights suburb minutes after phoning her husband, Castle Hills National Bank president Frank Pat-

Mrs. Patton phoned her husband, then put a man on the phone who demanded a large amount of money, according to the FBI. The caller never followed through on caller never followed through on collecting the money, however.

Patton called police immediately after receiving the call. When authorities arrived at the house minutes later, they found Mrs. Patton dead of several gunshot wounds.

Terry said he met with the informant who led to the suspects early Wednesday.

"We received very good information — good enough to obtain a search warrant," he said.

Officers surrounded the apartment complex and arrested one of the suspects on foot nearby. The second suspect was arrested inside the apartment, Terry said.

Officials said the two were picked up without incident and taken to the Alamo Heights police department for questioning.

Austin city council urged not to make power swap

Associated Press

AUSTIN - Several local groups urged the Austin city council Wednesday to back off from a reported "swap" of the city's share in the South Texas Nuclear Project for lignite-powered electricity.

Representatives of the South Texas Cancellation Campaign, the Sierra Club and the Travis County Democratic Women urged the council to hold public hearings before acting on a pro-posal reportedly offered by Houston Lighting and Power Co.

According to published reports, HL&P has offered to give Austin part ownership in the Limestone lignite-fueled power plant in East Texas if the city will drop the lawsuits it has filed against HL&P and Brown & Root Construction Co., plus its 16 percent share in the STNP under construction in Matagorda County. Austin also would get $120 million from Brown & Root.

Austin would not be out of the STNP project until it is completed and would still pay a ful 16 percent of the $880 million construction cost, Dan Harrison of the Cancellation Campaign told a news conference. "Austin's acceptance of this of fer would, in effect, make usa's lent partner' to HL&P and we will be expected to keep quiet and be satisfied with what we get," Harris son told a news conference. "We recommend the city council reject this offer, proceed will both lawsuits, intervene before the Public Utility Commission against the Brown & Root settlement and develop a program to cancel STNP," Harrison said.

"The proposed swap of ligning for nuclear power leaves Ausin with the worst of both worlds." Austin's Sierra Club. "Not on will we be responsible for the ful cost of the nuke, but we'll be stud in a lignite plant with no say over the pollution controls or land relamation efforts.
