SWC fun before New Year's

By BRANDON BERRY
Sports Writer

Week No. 6 has arrived in the college football season and the nine Southwest Conference schools have already made two facts perfectly clear — the contenders outnumber the lightweights and, whether due to recruiting luck or the preponderance of alumni car dealerships, the SWC is loaded with talent.

Week No. 6 is significant because eight of the nine teams will have at least two conference games under their straps. Never in the entire history of the SWC has a team with two losses won the league championship. Last year's Houston team became the first ever to qualify for the Cotton Bowl with two losses, so more than one blemish this early usually spells "I'll Be Home For Christmas."

Week No. 6 is here and the toughies will be getting going while the muffers will be getting lost.

So, here's what should happen in this most crucial week of the '85 season.

Baylor at SMU

Probably the best game, on paper at least, in the conference. Baylor, ranked 17th nationally, takes on 18th ranked SMU.

The "Million Dollar Mustangs," however, were ranked a lofty third in the nation until being smashed 28-6 by Arizona last Saturday.

The non-conference defeat was more important in the minds of SMU players than in the national rankings, however.

SMU is currently on NCAA probation and ineligible for a post-season bowl invitation, but preseason experts believed the Mustangs to be the SWC's best team and a national championship contender if they finished the regular season undefeated.

Without the motivation of a national championship game and no Cotton Bowl to aim for, the Mustangs might fold up and lose a lot more than one game this season.

Baylor is good enough to have beaten even an undefeated SMU team, so Week No. 6 is not a good place for the Mustangs to play like geldings.

Here's one for virility — SMU 31 Baylor 28

Arkansas at Texas Tech

The Raiders and Hogs both run the wishbone offense, so this game should resemble identical twins fighting for one pantsuit.

The Hogs and Raiders became even more similar last week when Tech broke the wishbone in their 28-27 loss to Texas A&M and passed from the flexbone offense engineered and favored by Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield.

The Hogs, meanwhile, went toad stomping against TCU in a 41-0 wipeout of the Horned Frogs.

Arkansas used 15 different ball carriers and three quarterbacks in amassing over 500 yards of offense.

So while the Raiders are certainly the debutants of the SWC Muffie Cotillion, Arkansas should have a ball of its own — Arkansas 38 Tech 13

TCU at Rice

Probably the only match-up in the conference in the past few years with no illegally recruited athletes on either team.

TCU Coach Jim Wacker kicked eight team members, including All-American running back Kenneth Davis, off his team when he learned they were accepting cash payments from boosters.

How important were those eight players?

TCU went from a 2-0 team hopping toward a bowl bid, to a 2-2 downward spiral, outscored 97-13 in their last two games, with as much spring in their legs as a car squashed toad splattered across the highway.

Rice, on the other hand, has never been very good this season.

Possessing arguably the worst defense in college football and the most intelligent alumni in the conference, the Owls have been outscored 182-72 and are the only SWC school not on probation or under investigation.

The Owls' passing attack can score points, though. And, with the recent season-ending injury to Frog quarterback Scott Ankrum, the same cannot yet be said for TCU.

Rice will recover a TCU fumble in the endzone with no time on the clock, ignoring 17 earlier interceptions, to win the game — proving in the process that cars and cash payments aren't all that bad — Rice 28 TCU 27

Texas vs. Oklahoma

The Texas offense against the Oklahoma defense? Who's kidding whom?

Once again Todd Dodge will look more like Miss Kitty than a major college quarterback as he crumbles under relentless pressure applied by the Sooner defense.

The Texas defense will put together a better performance than they have in their first three games and keep the OU running game under control, but the Sooners have a quarterback who can really throw. Well, kind of.

In the end, it will be the Oklahoma secondary intercepting the passes, Oklahoma linebackers intercepting Texas running backs, Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer intercepting a victory from rival Akers' "Air Horns" — Oklahoma 20 Houston at Texas A&M

The Aggies always beat the Cougars on Kyle Field. The Cougars always beat the Aggies in the home dome.

A&M doesn't even need to be in the field advantage this season.

Houston hasn't sneaked up anybody so far this year and a second consecutive Cotton Bowl appearance doesn't seem very likely.

The Cougar defense has been physically but has given up big plays after big play in almost every game situation.

They most likely will be able to stop A&M's "hammer and tong" offense of fullbacks Roger Hamrick and Vick and Anthony (Tony) Taylor but Kevin Murray will once again prove he's the most versatile quarterback in the conference and the Cougar secondary apart.

The Aggie defense will be without linebacker Johnny Holland, but the Cougar offense usually stops the Cougar offense anyway.

The Aggies will outscore the Cougars, go undefeated the rest of the season, earn a trip to the Cotton Bowl, be slapped with NCAA probation before they board the bus to home, watch the game on TV, they didn't really want to go away — and all before New Year's. Season's Greetings, sports fans! A&M 34 Houston 20

Spikers meet Purdue as 'Underdogs'

By CHAREAN WILLIAMS
Assistant Sports Editor

If the Texas A&M volleyball team had played Purdue last year, the Aggies probably would have been the odds on favorite to take the match. And if the teams had played just a few weeks ago, the Aggies would have still been the favorite.

But after the Boiler-makers reeled off 13 straight victories to start the season, while the Aggie machine sputtered and coughed its way through, it's Purdue who comes into G. Rolie White Coliseum Saturday night at 7:30 as the favorite.

Break out the capes, Aggies, it's "Underdog" time.

"I think talent-wise we're pretty even," A&M Coach Terry Condon said. "We match up pretty well player-for-player. They (Purdue) have their big player and we have ours. Everybody else equals out."

The No. 17 ranked Aggies (12-3) hope to leave the No. 9 Boiler-makers (13-1) wondering if it was a bird or a plane that swooped down upon them.

"I think their No. 9 ranking is a little high," Condon said. "But there's a lot at stake for us. We want to beat them out of that No. 9. It will look real good for us if we win. We seem to rise to those occasions."

Purdue lost its first match of the season Tuesday night in three straight to No. 12 Illinois.

"It's nice to see that they're human too," Condon said.

But they can't be afforded to be too human seeing that they face No. 7 Texas Friday night and No. 17 A&M on Saturday.

"I think Texas will beat them," Condon said. "If they lose to Texas, I think it will make them a little better to tell you the truth. If they beat Texas, they might tend to slack off. We just need to play like we did the other night."

Margaret Spence provided lightning, Stacey Gildner the thunder and Sherri Brinkman the ball as the Aggies "rained" over the Cougars 15-9, 15-5, 15-7.

But after the match, the Aggies already looking ahead to Purdue.

"That will be a match to watch," Brinkman said. "So will all the other matches, but especially this one."

Why this one?

"They're Yankees, you know (Purdue is in West Lafayette, Ind.) said the Illinois native. "Who's Yankees... except for me and my roommate Chris (Zogata)?"
