PEACE CORPS

Special Work For Special People

Peace Corps volunteers are people pretty much like you. People with commitment and skills who have assessed their lives and decided they want to be of service to others in a troubled world.

The problems our volunteers deal with overseas aren't new. Such as the cycle of poverty that traps one generation after another because they're too busy holding on to get ahead. The debilitating effects of malnutrition, disease, and inadequate shelter. Education and skills that are lacking, and the means to get them too.

Your college training qualifies you to handle more of these problems than you might think. Such as teaching nutrition and health practices; designing and building bridges and irrigation systems; working on reforestation and fisheries programs; introducing better agricultural techniques; advising small businesses and establishing cooperatives; or teaching math and science at the secondary level.

The number of jobs to do is nearly as great as the number of volunteers who have served since 1961: Nearly 90,000. More volunteers are being chosen now for two-year assignments beginning in the next 3-12 months in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Pacific.

Our representatives will be pleased to discuss the opportunities with you.

The Toughest Job You'll Ever Love

Baylor proving critics wrong

Preseason polls had Bears finishing 8th in SWC

Associated Press

WACO — The Baylor Bears are back doing what they do best, ambushing the Southwest Conference.

It seems there's no bad Bear like a spurned Bear.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff, who can play psychological poker with the best, bluffed his Bears into believing they were downgraded and underrated by the so-called experts.

"We're not going to finish eighth (in the SWC) like we were picked," Teaff said during the early part of the season. "We're better than that."

Indeed, the Bears have rushed right to the head of the SWC football class with a 4-0 start based on physical defense and a diversified veer offense. They beat USC on the road to gain momentum for victories over Texas Tech, Houston, SMU and Texas A&M.

Baylor, which hosts TCU this weekend, beat A&M, 20-15, Saturday night before a sellout crowd of

"The odds are against us going on the road and winning at Texas and Arkansas. . . . The way it looks right now, we might have a (SWC) conference champion with at least one loss this year." — Baylor Coach Grant Teaff 48,500 fans in Baylor Stadium.

"We're becoming a resilient team," Teaff said. "Our kicking game has been great. We've had the clutch defense when we've needed it. And our offense has been doing the job on third down. We had drives of 97, 75 and 80 yards against the Aggies and that's good offense."

BU has a horde of adequate running backs, two excellent quarterbacks in Cody Carlson and Tom Muecke, good receivers, and a "wild" Bear called Ralph Stockemer.

Stockemer, who shocked SMU two weeks ago by catching a touchdown pass as a tight end, crashed across for a touchdown from a yard away to defeat the Aggies in the fourth quarter.

Bear fans are beginning to sense something special about this season, thinking they could be on the road to the Cotton Bowl again like they were in the Januaries of '75 and '81.

Like 1980, when Baylor was picked to finish sixth in the SWC and it finished No. 6 in the nation.

Or the '83 campaign, when BU was selected eighth and still managed to win seven games.

The Friday night pep rallies in Waco are drawing big crowds, with some 10,000 on hand before the

A&M game.

"I'm getting too old for those night pep rallies, but they've been just great," Teaff said. "The fans really pumped up about the season."

The Bears, who are 6-1 overall and ranked 11th, still have rugged road games remaining against Iowa and Arkansas.

Teaff is using the upcoming tests as challenges.

"The odds are against us going on the road and winning at Texas and Arkansas," Teaff said. "We have to win our other two home games."

"The way it looks right now, we might have a (SWC) conference champion with at least one loss this year."

The rest of the SWC had better hurry if the Bears are going to get a glimpse.

The only way they are going to be eighth is being the 8th-ranked team in the country.

UT's Akers says SMU game shouldn't count

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Texas Coach Fred Akers said Monday the Longhorns' next game against SMU should not count in the Southwest Conference because the Mustangs are on probation.

Akers, who said SMU has the best talent in college football, was reminded that Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield had expressed that view, and he was asked if he felt the same way.

"Yeah," Akers told his weekly news conference. "That decision has already been made. That's over and done with."

Although SMU cannot play for the conference title, a victory or loss to the Mustangs counts in determining the SWC standings.

Texas, 2-0 in the SWC, plays SMU, 2-1, on Saturday at Texas Stadium in Irving.

SMU was placed on probation for violations of NCAA rules, and Akers said, "I think any team that is on probation with sanctions gives up a lot of things, or they should."

Asked if probation, including a loss of football scholarships, might cause an emotional drain, Akers responded, "I don't know how that can help them."

Texas upset No. 4 Arkansas 15-13 last Saturday at Fayetteville, Ark., and Akers said, "The best thing that we did in that game against Arkansas was play with just an awesome amount of effort."

Texas won the game on five field goals by Jeff Ward, and Akers was asked if the failure of his offense to score a touchdown for the second game in a row bothered him.

"It's obvious that I'd rather have five touchdowns than five field goals but I'm not going to complain, if you don't mind."

Bret Stafford played almost the entire game at quarterback, after Todd Dodge got the majority of the playing time in a 14-7 loss to Oklahoma.
