KC stays alive in Series

Royals flush Cards with speedsters, 6-1

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — The Kansas City speed connection of Lonnie Smith and Willie Wilson sent a signal, loud and clear — time has not yet expired on the American League champion Royals.

The Royals' No. 1 and 2 hitters sparked an offensive surge Thursday night that carried Kansas City to a 6-1 victory in Game 5 of the World Series against St. Louis.

The victory cut the Cardinals' advantage in the best-of-seven Series to three games-to-two and sent the Series back to Kansas City for Game 6 Saturday. The Royals will send left-hander Charlie Leibrandt, the hard-luck loser of Game 2, against Cardinal right-hander Danny Cox, who won Game 2 with the aid of four ninth-inning runs.

"What keeps us coming back is that World Series ring," Wilson said. "We want to win it. ... We were thinking about taking this back home. Nobody thought about losing."

With Danny Jackson pitching in and out of trouble in the early going despite allowing only five hits, Wilson and Smith spearheaded an 11-hit attack, matching the Royals' offensive output in their 6-1 victory in Game 3. Smith had two hits and scored a pair of runs, and Wilson had two hits, including a triple and a pair of RBI.

"I'm in a good groove, the groove I like to be in," Jackson said. "I concentrated harder tonight, especially with our backs to the wall."

The Royals scored once in the first inning against Bob Forsch, then added three more in the second, beginning with the first controversial call of the Series in a disputed play at home plate argued vehemently between Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog and umpire John Shulock.

"Too much Danny Jackson tonight," Herzog said. "We haven't done too much with him the last two times we faced him. The ballclub isn't hitting. They're pitching well, but you'd think we would get a few hits every now and then."

Still left for the Royals was an unenviable task. They had fallen behind 3-1 in the Series Wednesday night when they were shut out 3-0 by John Tudor. Of 34 previous teams to face such a deficit, only four had gone on to win the Series, the last beto a run, and fan favorite Tito Landrum had a rough day. Landrum let runners move up to second and third on a flyout in the first, leading to one run; misplayed a fly ball into a double, leading to the game-winning run in the second; and let another ball go over his head in the ninth for an RBI double.

Jackson, who worked seven effective innings in Game 2 before he left for a pinch hitter, was a little less effective in Game 5, but he was good enough. He gave up a first-inning run on Jack Clark's double and pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the third, but he retired 11 batters in a row before Landrum reached on an infield single.

In fact, after Forsch's exit in the second inning, St. Louis actually had the better of the pitching as reliever Rickey Horton, Bill Campbell, Todd Worrell and Jeff Lahti combined to hold the Royals to one unearned run the rest of the way. Worrell worked two innings, tying a World Series record by striking out all six batters he faced and helping Cardinals pitchers fan 15 Royals, two shy of the single-game Series record set by St. Louis' Bob Gibson against Detroit in 1968.

ing the 1979 Pittsburgh Pirates.

But the Royals had come back from such a deficit against Toronto in the AL playoffs, and now they hoped to do the same against St. Louis.

"Character, I guess, is what keeps us coming back," Royals third baseman George Brett said. "It's really hard to explain. Today, before the game, everybody was poised and comfortable and ready to play."

The Cardinals, meanwhile, seemed more like the team showing pressure. Slick-fielding shortstop Ozzie Smith made an error that led

Spurs send 'Iceman' to iceland

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — George Gervin, the "Iceman" who has sparked the San Antonio Spurs' scoring attack since 1974, was traded Thursday to the Chicago Bulls for forward David Greenwood.

Gervin, who led the NBA in scoring four years and five times was on the all-NBA team, "has been a mainstay of this franchise for 13 years," Spurs owner Angelo Drossos said.

"It was a difficult decision but a decision we had to make sooner or later," Drossos said. "We decided to make it now. We're not happy with making the deal. He's helped make the franchise what it is."

Gervin, 33, who for the first time last year in his nine NBA seasons failed to rank among the league's top 20 scorers, said "It ain't like I'm dying. I got a new job, a new owner and new people to deal with. If you're a good person, you can deal with that."

Gervin said he will continue to live in San Antonio.

"You can get me a new job but you can't get rid of me," he said. He refused to criticize Spurs management for the way the trade was handled. He said Drossos asked him to retire.

"I'm not ready to retire," he told the San Antonio Light. "That's out of the question. They handled it the best they knew how."

He said he holds no animosity toward Drossos or other team officials. But Gervin's agent, Pat Healy of Tacoma, Wash., indicated Gervin was not happy with the trade.

"George did not initiate the trade," Healy said. "His choice was to continue to remain with the Spurs, retire in San Antonio and stay there for the rest of his life. But George has no choice. They said, 'George, you go,' period."

Healy said the Bulls agreed to pick up the 12 months remaining on Gervin's $750,000-a-year contract, which also carries incentives up to $300,000.

Healy said Spurs General Manager Bob Bass told him that Greenwood, the second pick by Chicago in the first round of the 1979 draft, would get a guaranteed $500,000 for two years.

Talk of trading Gervin to Chicago surfaced Wednesday after he failed to show up for two practices Tuesday and later was fined.

Gervin, a 6-foot-7 guard, was generally lackluster in the preseason, averaging just 10.7 points per game. He also has been at odds with Spurs Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons, who was critical of Gervin's failure to be aggressive on defense.

Greenwood, 6-10, who has played six NBA seasons with the Bulls, missed 11 games last season with tendinitis in both heels.

Drossos said he presumed Gervin would fly to Chicago Thursday and Greenwood would travel to San Antonio as well on Thursday. Greenwood said he was not surprised at the trade.

"I knew I was expendable," Greenwood said. "I also knew I was the odd man out in the Bulls' plans. It was not surprising to me, but I know I'll get a good shot with San Antonio."

In moving to Chicago, Gervin will be playing under his former Spurs' mentor, Stan Albeck.

Jerry Krause, Bulls vice president of operations, said he was aware that Gervin "has been classed as an inadequate defensive player. But his former coach, Stan Albeck, will have him back again and he assured me that Gervin will not give away too many points."

Krause said the loss of guard Quintin Dailey, who has entered a drug rehabilitation program, created an opening that Gervin can fill.

"Teamed with Michael Jordan in the backcourt, we are going to be a hard act to follow," Krause said.

San Antonio Spurs veteran guard George Gervin (above) on being traded Thursday to the Chicago Bulls — "It ain't like I'm dying. I got a new job, a new owner and new people to deal with. If you're a good person, you can deal with that. I'm not ready to retire."
