Ag golfers travel to Beaumont

Lady linksters try to turn fall season around

By DOUG HALL
 Sports Writer

After a disappointing showing in two California tournaments earlier this month, the Texas A&M's women's golf team hopes to rebound this weekend in the Lady Cardinal Invitational in Beaumont.

"We're definitely trying to rebound," said A&M team captain Angela Atkins. "Susie Faccini played good in California, but other than her, no one did."

Atkins said she was especially disappointed in her play, which had been strong in the first two fall tournaments.

"I played really bad," Atkins said. "and I had been playing really good this season. That hurt us a lot."

The nine-team tournament, hosted by Lamar, is being played at the Wildwood Country Club. According to Atkins, the course at Wildwood is more suited to the Aggie's style of golf, compared with those they faced on the West Coast.

Atkins said the putting greens at the Stanford and Sacramento State Invationals were much faster than those the Ags are used to putting on.

"The greens were very fast, but we just didn't make the adjustments," A&M Coach Kitty Holley said.

However, Atkins said, Wildwood will be another story.

"It (Wildwood) should be under much more of the same conditions that we are used to playing on," Holley said. "And putting can make you or break you."

Faccini, in particular, would like to see the Aggies make it this weekend as she plays in her final collegiate tournament.

"I don't look forward to losing Susie," Holley said. "But that's the nature of the game. Just when you get them where you want them, it's time for them to leave."

The four Aggie freshmen will have added pressure to take up the slack of Faccini, who is graduating, since she was the Ags' most consistent player this fall.

"We'll have to depend on the freshmen," Atkins said. "They're just going to have to play well."

Holley said two freshmen in particular, Adriana Penuela and Mariana Oyanguren, done just that this fall.

Atkins said she hopes the Lady Cardinal Tournament, which starts Sunday and runs through Tuesday, will give the Ags a chance to bounce back after not only a poor showing in California, but a rough fall.

"I'm not really pleased with the way we've played this fall," Atkins said.

Aggie netters to face SWC's best — again

By KEN SURY
 Sports Writer

While the Texas A&M football team faces one Southwest Conference foe in Fort Worth this weekend, the A&M men's tennis team will be there to battle the entire SWC.

Texas Christian will be the site of the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association (ITCA) Regional Tennis Tournament, Friday through Sunday.

Players from all nine SWC schools and other Texas colleges will compete for spots in the ITCA Nationals in Houston, Feb. 6-9.

To earn an automatic bid to the ITCA Nationals, the singles player or doubles team must finish in either first or second place in this tournament. Other players may earn a berth to the national tournament by ITCA invitation only.

A&M Men's Tennis Coach David Kent said the ITCA regionals will definitely be a tough tournament, but added, "This is a chance to show what we can do (against tough SWC competition like Southern Methodist and Texas)."

And the competition should be stiff in Fort Worth, with 12 of the nation's Top 50 collegiate singles players (according to ITCA's preseason poll) scheduled to be at the tournament.

SMU alone boasts half of that "I think this year our forte will be our team depth. We've had a good fall because of our senior leadership. Kimmo Alkio and Russ Simmons are both quality people and excellent players."

 — A&M Men's Tennis Coach David Kent

number with John Ross (No. 4), Richey Reneberg (No. 5), Mark Styling (No. 18), Den Bishop (No. 30), Stefan Kruger (No. 34) and Ed Ross (No. 50).

Rounding out the rest of the ranked players is TCU's Tom Mercer (No. 17), Texas Royce Deppe (No. 21), Rice's Scott Melville (No. 24), Arkansas' Bobby Blair (No. 25), A&M's Kimmo Alkio (No. 37) and Trinity's Fanie Reinach (No. 47).

The doubles competition should be just as intense. A&M's Alkio and Marcel Vos are ranked 21st in the preseason ITCA poll, but the Texas tandem of Deppe and Charles Beckman own the No. 3 spot.

Other nationally-ranked tandems include Arkansas' Tim Siegel-Richard Schmidt (No. 6), SMU's John Ross-Kruger (No. 9), Trinity's Dexter McBride-Reinach (No. 11), SMU's Bishop-Stylinger (No. 17), TCU's Neil Broad-Mercer (No. 21) and Rice's Melville-Taylor (No. 23).

This is the last fall tournament for the Aggies in 1985 and Kent said he's excited about the upcoming spring season.

"I think this year our forte will be our team depth," Kent said. "We've had a good fall because of our senior leadership. Kimmo Alkio and Russ Simmons are both quality people and excellent players."

Kent said the Aggie lineup for the spring is tentatively set with Alkio as the No. 1 singles position and Simmons at No. 2. The Nos. 3-7 spots are in order — Mark Smith, Dean Johnson, Marcel Vos, Dean Goldstein and Chris Stanich.

For doubles, Kent said, the No. 1-3 positions will be Alkio-Vos, Goldstein-Smith and Smith-Simmons.
