A&M back on track — and field

Teams open season today in Louisiana

By TOM TAGLIABUE
Sports Writer

The Texas A&M men's and women's track and field teams will compete in their first indoor meet of 1986 today and Saturday in Baton Rouge, La. at the LSU Invitational. A&M Head Track Coach Charlie Thomas said the Aggies will use the meet to get back in shape and give the athletes competition before the more major meets.

Thomas, who took over as head coach in June, said some NCAA schools have already been to two or three meets, while the LSU meet will be A&M's first. The Aggies sent 95 athletes to compete in Louisiana. Going into the '86 season, Thomas said the strengths of both the men's and women's teams lie in the field events.

"We may have a pretty well-rounded track team this year," Thomas said. "The field events are where we'll probably be the strongest."

Thomas rates the Southwest Conference as the top track and field conference in the nation for '86.

The Aggie men's team has some big holes to fill after last season's fifth-place SWC finish.

A&M loses both of its top high jumpers, Jimmy Howard and Ethan Glass, as well as All-America and NCAA champion distance runner Arturo Barrios.

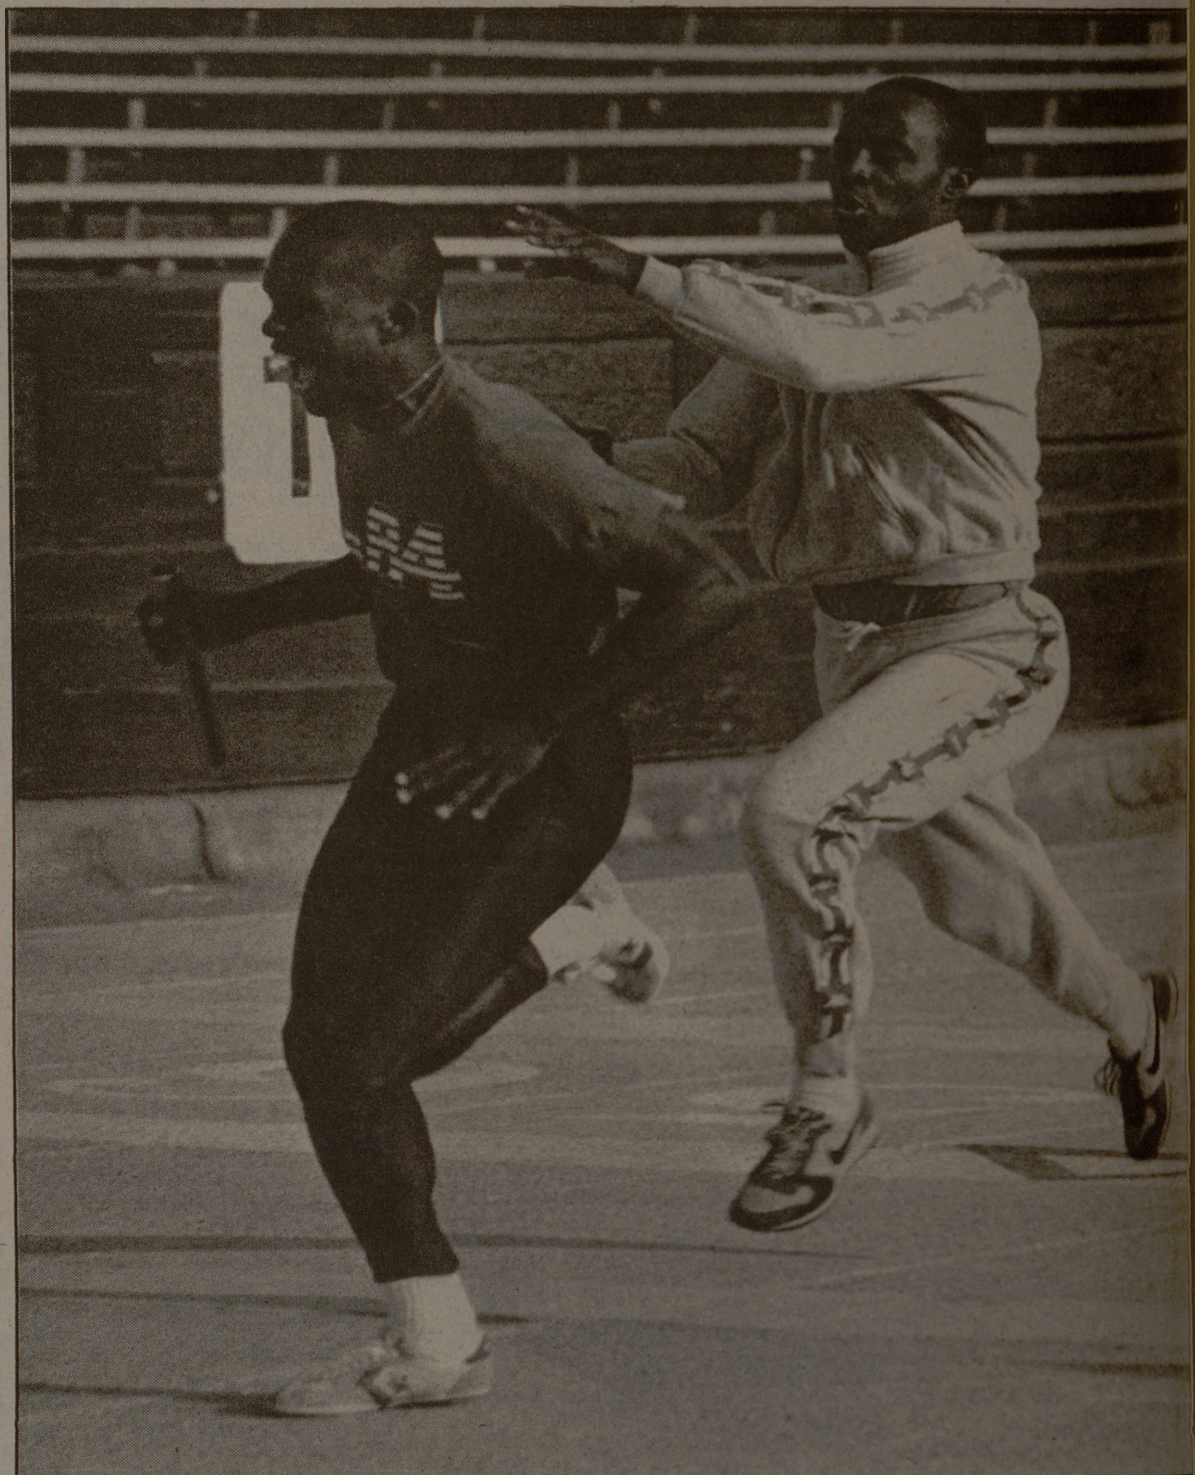

One of the new freshman recruits Thomas thinks will make an immediate impact is 6-foot-4, 280-pound shot put and discus specialist, Randy Barnes. Barnes has thrown the shot 64 feet in practice. The top shot putter in the SWC last season won with a throw of only 62 feet.

Thomas expects good things from freshman mile runner Calvin Gaziano, from California, and Ian James, a triple and long jumper, who was the Canadian national track champion in 1983.

Thomas said he also expects immediate contributions from his freshman relay team — Floyd Heard, from Milwaukee, Wis.; Stanley Kerr, a high school All-American from near-by Snook; Lawrence Fehon, a state champion hurdler from Convent, La.; and Archie Roberts from Houston. Heard and Kerr will also run the 100- and 200-yard dashes.

"We have an outstanding group of freshmen and we feel like by the time the year is over, some of these freshmen will be making pretty good news for us — we hope," Thomas said.

"We feel like that, by the end of the year, the freshmen will be matured and will be acting like they've been here four years. We like to think they've got the ability. And in track, if you've got the ability, you can (win) your freshman year. You don't have to wait."

Sixty-nine men will make the trip to LSU, including Kendrick Wesley, who runs the half-mile and mile relay; Chris Walker, a sophomore high jumper who placed third in the SWC meet last year; Francisco Oliveras, a senior All-America triple jumper from Mexico; and sophomore Rickey Alexander, a high hurdler.

The men's team will be without high jumper Kenny Burke, who has a sprained ankle. This leaves the team without a high jumper because the Aggies lost their other high jumper to academic problems.

The Aggie women's program is hurting not because of injuries, but because of a lack of team members.

The women's team consists of only 26 members, but Thomas said he is confident the veterans can do well at this weekend's meet and beyond.

Distance running is the event which Thomas expects the women to excel in '86.

Four women make up the distance team for the Aggies — sophomores Becky and Beth Drees, twins from Fort Wayne, Ind.; senior Debbie Noel, of Richardson; and senior Kathy Craig, a walk-on who returned to the team last year after a two-year layoff.

Field events should bring in some points for the women, too, Thomas said.

Lisa Coley, a junior college transfer from Mesa, Ariz., will throw the javelin for the Aggies. Thomas likes Kay McMurray, a Bryan High product who throws both the shot and discus, as a potential force in the SWC. He also said Cassandra Perkins and Vernell Dunn, both shot putters, are possible point producers.

Thomas, who is coaching the women's team for the first time, also said Sherri Smith (hurdles), Brant Stubblefield (high jump) and L'Tanya Brown (long jump) have looked good in practice.
