Chappell Hill and Winkleman Village.....3

These tiny towns not far from Brenham can be missed in the blink of an eye from the highway. One has the distinction of being designed by a woman. The other is a recreated boomtown, complete with saloon. Join Molly Pepper for a visit to both.

Brenham5

Blue Bell's not the only thing in Brenham, contrary to popular belief. The town has several historic sites and is in the process of revitalizing its downtown area along the lines of Sixth Street. Stacey Roberts reports on its progress.

Navasota.....7

Navasota is listed on the state register of Historic Places but is often overlooked by tourists and Sunday drivers alike. Jay Blinderman explores the town and tells us what to see.

The Apiary..... 8

An apiary is the textbook term for a place where bees are raised, and one of the world's largest is in Navasota. Jay Blinderman visits this family of fourth-generation beekeepers to find out more about it.

The Nuns of St. Clare's10

Horsebreeding isn't a nun's usual line of work. But the sisters of the St. Clare's Monastery outside Brenham are a far cry from your usual nuns. To finance the construction of their new monastery, the sisters breed and sell miniature horses. Tamara Bell reports.
