Woman kills self, family in Pearland

Associated Press

PEARLAND — A woman who thought she was going to be committed to a mental hospital killed her entire family and then turned a gun on herself, authorities said.

Authorities found the body of Mitsue Davis, 37, Friday night in the bedroom of the family's mobile home near Pearland, 15 miles southeast of Houston.

Her body, with a gunshot wound to the head, was found on the floor next to her husband. She was still holding a .22-caliber revolver in her right hand, investigators said.

Her husband of 17 years, Joseph Keith Davis, 41, also was shot in the head.

The couple's two children, Clifford Davis, 4, and Michael Davis, 3, were found lying on the floor adjacent to their parents' bed.

Each was covered with a blanket and had been shot from close range, said sheriff's investigator Wayne DuBose.

The family was shot either late at night on Jan. 24 or early the next day, said Capt. T.O. Bock.

The bodies were taken to the Harris County morgue for autopsies.

Neighbors told investigators that Mrs. Davis believed she was going to be committed to a mental hospital, and her husband would leave with her children.

Mrs. Davis was an outpatient at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston for eight months, DuBose said.

Neighbors said that they didn't suspect anything because Davis, a truck driver, was sometimes gone for a week and the family went with him.

Friends of the family said Mrs. Davis had asked them recently if they could teach her how to fire a gun and on two occasions discussed suicide, according to investigators.

J.B. Brister, the neighbor who discovered the bodies, said that after Davis realized his wife's mental condition was deteriorating, he disassembled his .22-caliber rifle and locked it in a closet.

Investigators had not determined where Mrs. Davis got the revolver, but suspected that she purchased it in a pawn shop.
