Greenwood shows humor

Patriotic theme ends performance

By Sue Brownfield
Reporter

Neither the dreary weather nor the small audience seemed to affect country and western singer Lee Greenwood as he performed in Rudder Auditorium Sunday night.

Greenwood entertained the audience for two hours with his jokes, songs and saxophone.

After strolling out to the edge of the stage and shaking hands with people in the front row, he asked for a big howdy from the crowd, who responded in the traditional Aggie manner.

He performed many of his popular songs such as "I.O.U.", "Somebody's Gonna Love You", and "You've Got a Good Love Coming", as well as songs made popular by other artists, such as, "Sometimes When We Touch", and "In a Love Song."

At the beginning of his performance Greenwood told the audience he'd like to sing the song that made him famous. So the audience fell hush and sat back in their seats, awaiting a slow love song.

But the band belted out the McDonald's jingle, "McDonalds and You, Fresh Scrambled Eggs . . ." causing a burst of laughter from the crowd.

It is obvious that Greenwood enjoys poking fun at other artists. He did an absurd imitation of Julio Iglesias and asked the audience, "Is there anything sexy about that?" Then he added, "That sucker probably can't even ride a horse."

He said country songs are always about a girl hurting a guy or a guy hurting a girl. "I wonder who Boy George hurt," he said. "He probably hurt himself trying to figure out which way to go."

However, Greenwood ended his performance on a very emotional note. He dedicated the last song, "Proud to be an American", to all of those who served in the military and to the families of the shuttle Challenger.

In the back of the stage a huge American flag was unrolled, bringing the audience to their feet.

Greenwood's back-up band was The Shoppe, a six-man band from Dallas.

Panhandle snowfall continues

While the snow-covered Texas Panhandle got another dose Sunday, some parts of North and Central Texas were bracing for their first measurable snow and ice of the season.

In the Panhandle, where snow already had piled up to more than a foot in areas, more snow closed a 120-mile section of Interstate 40 from Amarillo west to Tucumcari, N.M.

Another few inches were expected to fall overnight, the National Weather Service said.

Borger and Dumas had 15 inches of snow on the ground by mid-afternoon, while Miami and Hereford reported 11 inches and Amarillo had 9 inches, forecasters said.

A winter storm warning was posted for most of the Panhandle, while a winter storm watch was in effect for the South Plains.

In South Texas a travelers advisory was in effect for the Hill Country Monday as a chance of rain or drizzle changing to freezing rain or sleet was forecast.

Faculty Senate to meet today

By SONDRRA PICKARD
Senior Staff Writer

A new method for selecting department heads and a resolution to change the procedure for granting emeritus status to professors will be discussed by the Faculty Senate today at 3:15 in 601 Rudder.

Currently, there is no specific policy concerning the selection, evaluation and retention of department heads at Texas A&M. Procedures for selecting department heads are developed by the dean of each college, and in many cases don't include any faculty input.

The new proposal, drawn up by the Senate's Planning Committee, includes consideration of faculty sentiment towards incumbent and prospective department heads and broad faculty participation in the selection process.

The Senate also will consider a new procedure for awarding emeritus status to deserving faculty members.

Last summer the Faculty Senate approved a resolution on professor emeritus status which was submitted to A&M President Frank E. Vandiver. The president returned the resolution with a request for several modifications. Responding to some of Vandiver's concerns, the Senate Personnel and Welfare Committee made changes in the proposal and will present the revised resolution to the Senate today.

Also, the Academic Affairs Committee will present the Senate with several recommendations concerning early undergraduate admission to the Graduate College and undergraduate registration for graduate courses.

MSC Council to review goals

By JEANNE ISENBERG
Staff Writer

The MSC Council will take a look at the five-year master plan for the Memorial Student Center at its second meeting of the semester tonight at 7 p.m., MSC President Denis Davis said.

The MSC has many long-range goals to fulfill, Davis said, and unless each goal is looked at periodically in short-term objectives, many of them would not be achieved.

The five-year plan is the method used by the MSC to prioritize its goals and to outline the path it will take to achieve them, Davis said.

It consists of five sections, each detailing the goals for different areas of the MSC: facilities, funding, marketing, services and a summary.

Following the statement of goals in the plan, a statistical summary breaks down each broad area into a number of specific. Each of these detailed objectives is prioritized in order of importance, Davis said, and the statistics show how close each one is to being achieved.

When a goal is rated as high in importance, Davis said, it means that no matter how long it takes, that goal will be fulfilled.

Copies of the plan will be distributed and if the Council has any questions, discussion will be at the next regularly scheduled meeting in two weeks.

The Council is also moving into its second slate of officer appointments tonight, Davis said.

The nominating committee will discuss and choose the executive vice presidents and the first slate of chairmen for 1986-1987, but the new officers will not officially take over their positions until April.

Barton to be in Bryan tonight

Rep. Joe Barton, R-Texas, will be in Bryan tonight to present a "State of the District" message to Brazos County residents.

Barton's presentation is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the Lamar School cafeteria at 1901 Villa Maria.

His visit to Bryan will be the third of 14 stops Barton is scheduled to make this week as he conducts town meetings in each county within his 6th District constituency.

Barton said he plans to use the meetings to discuss problems, recognize achievements, unveil his legislative goals for the second session of the 99th Congress, and sample opinion on issues currently facing the nation's lawmakers.

"These sessions will also give me an opportunity to discuss some of the crucial decisions regarding taxes and spending that the Congress will face this year," Barton said.

Although part of the new Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction law was declared unconstitutional on Friday, the first round of automatic spending cuts mandated by the law is still expected to take effect March 1.

Boys choir to perform here

By MARY McWHORTER
Staff Writer

The Vienna Boys Choir will give a sold-out performance Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Rudder Auditorium.

The program includes selections from Henry Purcell, Antonio Lotti, Joseph Haydn, Zoltan Kodaly, Franz Schubert, W.A. Mozart, F. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy and Johannes Brahms.

The Vienna Boys Choir was founded by Emperor Maximilian I on July 7, 1498. Composers such as Christoph Willibald Gluck, the founder of the modern operatic form, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Joseph Haydn and Franz Schubert are among the illustrious musicians who have written music for the choir.

In 1918, with the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, the choir was disbanded. However in 1924, Joseph Schnitt, who had retained the chaplaincy of the Imperial Chapel, decided to start the choir again. His dedication led the Vienna Boys Choir to international success.

Schnitt decided that the boarding school method was the only practical one for insuring the musical training necessary for the boys. Today, those who wish to be considered for entry attend a special preparatory school. They receive an education in the theory and practice of singing as well as instruction on one musical instrument. At the age of nine, the candidates take an examination to become a member of the choir.

Usually two choirs are on tour at the same time. The tours last about three months. While on tour the 24 choristers are accompanied by a choirmaster, a tutor and a nurse.
