Christian songwriter to perform

By AMY COUVILLON
Reporter

Randy Stonehill, a Christian recording artist and song writer, will perform at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Rudder Auditorium.

Stonehill has been called everything but conventional. A recent article described a concert Stonehill gave on a college campus. "He wore a checkered flag shirt, an extremely yellow tie and Mick Jagger-style pencil-stick slacks. Black and white dancing shoes completed the outfit..."

Stonehill's latest album, "Love Beyond Reason," sounds very much like the secular rock 'n' roll music of 1986, reported the Waco Tribune-Herald.

The only thing that hasn't changed over the 15 years since he released his first album, the Tribune-Herald continues, is the message — Stonehill now, as always, proclaims Jesus Christ as Lord.

Although Stonehill is a born-again Christian, manager Ray Ware says that he is not just a "Christian" musician; he is a musician.

Ware says that many of Stonehill's fans respect Stonehill as a musician and they understand that his lyrics are coming from his heart.

"Randy is one of the few Christian artists that has an ability to speak beyond the church," Ware says. Stonehill, 33, recorded his first album, "Born Twice," when he was 19 years old. Since then, he has recorded eight more albums and one video album.

Stonehill has just finished a tour of 45 dates in the United States. He has been nominated for a Grammy Award for his recent duet with Amy Grant, "I Could Never Say Goodbye."

The concert is presented by the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. Tickets at Rudder Box Office are $5 in advance and $6 at the door.

Miss Texas A&M 1986 chosen

Sophomore wins pageant

A night of "masked enchantment" made dreams come true for Texas A&M sophomore Catherine Vincent, a journalism major from Houston, who was crowned 1986 Miss Texas A&M in Rudder Auditorium Saturday night.

Vincent was sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha.

As Miss Texas A&M, Vincent will be awarded a $1,000 scholarship, the official crown and trophy, a $1,000 wardrobe allowance for the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant, a one-year free membership to Shape Way, a 1986 Cadillac for all official appearances from Allen Olds Cadillac and a 14-karat gold and diamond pendant from Zale's Jewelers. She also will represent A&M in the Miss Texas Pageant.

First runner-up was Merita Staggs, sponsored by Photo Systems, Inc.; second-runner up was Beth Brenckman, sponsored by Kappa Sigma; third-runner up was Shelley Marcontell, sponsored by Albert's Hair Design; and fourth-runner up was Shelley Irvin, sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi.

Tracy Salyer won the swimsuit competition and Sherilyn Smith won the talent competition.

The four runners-up will be awarded a $500, $400, $300 and $250 scholarships respectively.

The swimsuit and talent winners will receive a Miss Texas A&M Trophy.

The Miss Texas A&M Scholarship Pageant is a franchise of the Miss Texas/Miss America Program. Dana Rogers, Miss Texas 1983, was the master of ceremonies at this year's pageant.

The scoring breakdown was personal interview, 25 percent; talent, 50 percent; and swimsuit and evening gown, 25 percent. During the five-minute interview, which was held Saturday morning, the contestants were asked questions about University, state, national and world events.

The Aggieband Orchestra accompanied the contestants throughout the program and the Ross Volunteers escorted the contestants during the evening gown competition.

Teresa Fritz, Miss Texas A&M 1985, performed a twirling routine and made her farewell walk.

The other contestants and their sponsors were Connie Johnson, Hardy-Gardens; Sue Olsta, Alpha Phi; Nancy Butler, Phi Kappa Sigma in conjunction with Luther's; Kim Primm, Traditions; Karen Leatherman, JC Penney; Cindy Christian, Turn Fab, Inc.; Susan Carroll, Casa Tomas; Karla LeCroy, Brownstone Apartments; Pauline Cura, CC Creations; Carolee Sherwood, Alpha Gamma Delta and Sharon Salvato, Shape Way.

UT may require students to sign non-hazing agreements

AUSTIN — The University of Texas may require student groups to sign a new non-hazing agreement each year and to submit a written summary of their pledge programs, University President William Cunningham said.

Cunningham outlined the possible steps during a hazing forum at the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity house west of the campus on Saturday. He said the non-hazing agreement could be similar to one the ZBT national chapter requires local chapters to sign.

The written summary of pledge programs "wouldn't be a statement in massive detail, but could be a statement of the group's philosophy and ground rules," he said.

Cunningham and state Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos were among the guests at the forum, much of which dealt with questions about the anti-hazing campaign begun in November by the UT administration.

The UT chapter of Alpha Tau Omega this month was suspended for at least three years and several members of the group were suspended for two years because of a hazing incident that sent several pledges to hospitals with infections.
