'A Cry of Players' explores theater

By Molly Pepper
Staff Writer

It must be Shakespeare month in the metroplex. Last week it was the Royal Shakespeare Company, and this one it's the Aggie Players production of "A Cry of Players." Although the play is about the life of Shakespeare, it's not so much a biography as an exploration of Elizabethian theater, says Mary Mitchell, the play's director. "It's about the theater, the spirit of the theater, the joy that's involved in it and all the passion that goes into it," she says. "The cry represents a lot of different things but mainly the passion and determination it takes to make really difficult decisions." The two main characters are Will and Anne so it's assumed they're Shakespeare and his wife, Anne Hathaway. The title, "A Cry of Players" relates to Shakespeare's decision to enter the theater. Lance Miller, one of the actors in the play, says the story shows how Shakespeare found his way into the theater as a way of avoiding a career as a school teacher. In true Elizabethian fashion, the stage will be inclined up away from the audience, Miller says. In Shakespeare's time, there were no bleachers or sloped seating for the audience so the stage was angled in this way to allow everyone to see. Mitchell says she chose this particular play for the Aggie Players because she thought the actors and actresses would benefit from acting in a play by William Gibson and because she liked it herself. The cast was chosen in early December and rehearsals began before the Christmas break, theater arts department head Roger Schultz says. Since the beginning of the spring semester the Aggie Players have been rehearsing seven days a week. The play will be performed tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Rudder Forum. Tickets are $4 for students and $5 for others and are available at the Rudder Box Office.
