Baby food returns to some Texas store shelves

Associated Press

DALLAS — Some Texas grocery stores, reassured by the Food and Drug Administration that Gerber baby food is safe for infants, have started or plan to begin returning the jars to store shelves this week, officials said Tuesday.

Tom Thumb and Kroger food stores removed the food from shelves last week after a woman reported finding glass in a jar of strained peas Feb. 24 she bought at a Grand Prairie Kroger store.

FDA regional director Don Heaton said the agency examined the contents of 9,310 jars and found four glass particles — three in one jar and one in another.

Heaton said the particles were small and probably wouldn't have harmed a baby.

Heaton said he told grocers they face two problems.

First, he said, it is impossible to eliminate all glass particles from glass jars, even though the jars at the Gerber plant are carried through the plant upside-down, are blown out by a strong air current and are washed.

He said jars are turned right side-up "less than 10 feet from the filler," and are covered by a plastic shield at that time.

The second problem, he said, is that "in opened containers presented to us by consumers, we're finding larger fragments and larger numbers of fragments. We do not believe this constitutes a manufacturing problem, but have been introduced by someone after the containers left the factory."

Cattle drive bogged down, organizer says

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The official Sesquicentennial cattle drive bogged down Tuesday, mostly because of problems with the event's liability insurance.

Bill Minter, trail boss of the drive, said, "I'm just shut down."

The trail drive left Monday from Manor in the northeast outskirts of Austin.

The 25 participants, with their horses and 49 longhorn steers, were at Elgin, east of Austin, Tuesday.

Minter, one of the organizers of the 250-mile drive to Alvin, near Houston, said that when the drive began he was responsible only for gas and oil for vehicles accompanying the drive.

"Now, the food people backed down and the insurance people jumped up their premiums again," Minter said. "I've run out of money. That's what the story is."

Minter said he was not canceling his plans for the drive.

"I have a longhorn steer that is broke to ride," he said, "and if I have to I will put him out front on the highway."

"But right now we just can't move from here. We can't move the cattle."

5 MILLION AMERICANS ARE LOOKING IN THE WRONG PLACE FOR HELP.

Do you go to the refrigerator even though you're not really hungry? Do you keep eating long after you're full?

Chances are, your insatiable hunger is for something more than food.

You could be one of the millions of people who use food to fill an emptiness inside. A feeling of rejection.

Frustration. Or loneliness.

Yet the more you eat, the lonelier and more unhappy you become. It's a vicious cycle.

But it's not your fault.

It's a disease called Bulimia or Bulimarexia. No one can recover by themselves. Willpower doesn't help. Dieting and pills only make the problem worse. Even therapy isn't always successful.

Ours is one of the nation's leading eating disorder programs. It's successful because we treat our patients' physical, social, spiritual, and psychological needs. And we help them to recover in an atmosphere of warmth and caring.

Call us. We understand the pain and frustration you're feeling.

We know what you're going through.

Yes No

- Do you eat without being hungry?
- Do you spend most of your time thinking about food?
- Do you find eating soothes your problems?
- Do you anticipate being alone so you can eat?
- Do you eat normally around others, but binge later to make up for it?
- Do you feel guilty after bingeing?
- Do you never seem to get anything accomplished because your day was consumed by food?
- Do you feel no one understands?

If you answer yes to three or more of the above you are probably addicted to food, or well on your way to becoming addicted.
