Dear Readers:

Now that we got your attention with the cover, welcome to the spring break issue. This week we're giving you the results of an informal poll we took on the best things in town. We polled students on their favorite places to eat and drink various things. Half-Price Books, obviously neither, was the winner in the "other" category. Hope you enjoy At Ease this week. Have a nice spring break.

Spring Break3

Nothing is more depressing than telling people you're going home for spring break, even if you're excited about it yourself. Reporter Nancy Feigenbaum tells us what life's like for the homeward-bound student.

The best of the bookstores6

Most students make a point to stay as far away from the campus bookstores as possible. Half-Price Books is the kind of place that reminds you reading can be done for pleasure. Join Nancy Feigenbaum when she visits.

The best of A&M11

Who makes the best fajitas in town? Where's the best ice cream? What's the best place to drink beer? Who delivers the best food? It's not 20 questions, just the results of an informal, admittedly biased, poll taken by staff writer Molly Pepper. Join her for the results.
