Ags' Barnes gets closer to all-time shot record

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN — Texas A&M has another world class shotputting "Randy" on campus.

Olympian Randy Matson, who made his mark on the track and field world in the 1970s, is a director of alumni at A&M.

But he never heaved the 16-pound shot his freshman year as far as Randy Barnes, a 6-foot-5, 285-pound sensation from West Virginia.

Barnes made believers at the Texas Relays Saturday with a heave of 69 feet, 2 1/4 inches, the best ever by a collegiate freshman and 10th on the all-time list.

The Aggie freshman had popped some eyes open with a 70-foot heave in practice.

His effort of 69 feet, 2 1/2 inches was the best university-college division shot put in Texas Relays' history and was the third best in Southwest Conference history.

Al Feuerbach set the meet mark of 70-1 1/2 while competing in the open division for the Pacific Coast Track Club in 1974.

A&M's Matson and Michael Carter of Southern Methodist had throws of 71-5 1/2 and 71-4 3/4, respectively, during their collegiate careers.

Matson had a toss of 68-8 in the 1976 Texas Relays for the previous college-university division best.

But Carter and Matson never threw the shot as far as Barnes during their freshmen seasons. Carter had the national freshman record of 67-7.

Barnes of Charleston, W.Va., made his tremendous throw on his first try before the Memorial Stadium crowd of 11,000. His previous best was 67-7 1/4 in the College Station Relays last weekend.

Barnes' best in high school with the 12-pound shot was 66-9 1/2 at St. Albans, West Virginia.

Barnes uses a difficult spin move that makes him inconsistent.

"I figured Randy would hit a long one," A&M Coach Charlie Thomas said. "He was hitting the center of the ring in practice and that's a good sign. He had one at 70 in practice."

Barnes was voted the meet's outstanding male performer.

"I'm excited," Barnes said. "I'd heard of the Texas Relays and I was excited about competing here. My next goal is the collegiate record."

collegiate standard of 71-11 in 1984.

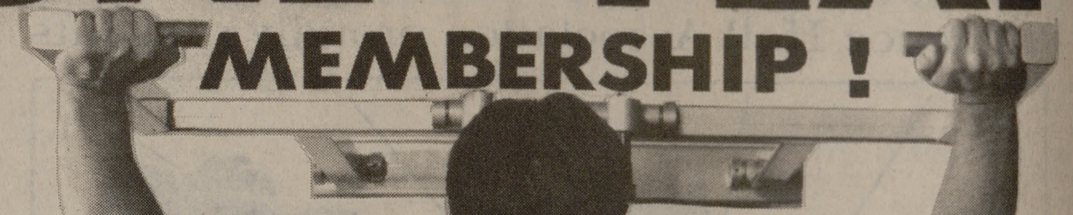

The Aggies only other first came Friday in the 4x200 relay.

Freshmen Lawrence Felton, Floyd Heard, Archie Roberts and Stanley

Kerr ran a 1:21.70 to win the event.

A&M picked up two thirds from Felton, Heard, Roberts and Kerr in the 4x100 relay and Francisco Ojeras in the triple jump.
