A&M athletes win Florida Olympics, $1,000 scholarship

By Susan Clark
 Reporter

When college students return from spring break they usually bring back sun tans and snapshots of beach parties, but a group of Texas A&M students brought back something a little more substantial after winning the Budweiser Spring Break Olympics.

Members of the Texas A&M football team won the five-day Olympics at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and brought back a $1,000 scholarship.

Team members included Carl Isaac, Dennis Mudd, Paul Gaspar, Monty Jay, Rod Bernstine, Bobby Middleton, Norman Crow, Greg Dillon, Todd Howard, Alan Thompson and Chris Ford.

Isaac said the group decided to enter the contest after a team consisting of himself, Middleton, Gaspar, and Crow placed second in a similar contest at South Padre Island sponsored by Heineken Beer.

The group had a couple of reasons for going to Fort Lauderdale: Most of them had never been there and they wanted to show the other schools the finer points of partying, Isaac said.

The games took place on the beach near Highway A1A, also known as "The Strip." The Aggies competed in seven events: volleyball, a basketball "hot shot" competition, an aerobic tossing contest, an obstacle course, tug of war, aerobics, and a car stuffing contest.

The team got lucky, Isaac said, when the car stuffing contest was canceled due to bad weather. Isaac said it would have been difficult to stuff nine football players into a small car.

that one person from each team must drop the rope. With only the anchorman of each team left, Twelfth Man kickoff team member Middleton won the tug-of-war for A&M.

In the aerobics event, the teams did 25 minutes of aerobics and the school with the most team members left standing won. A&M tied Florida State for first place with each team having 11 members standing.

The team placed third in the aerobic toss. An aerobic is a ring-shaped flying disc, Isaac said. The object of the event was to throw the aerobic across the width of a basketball court as many times as possible within a 30-second time span.

Jay and Thompson tied for third in the basketball "hot shot" competition. In the "hot shot" event, the player shot from different areas of the court, each area being worth points, Isaac said.

The Aggies scored 950 points with Florida State running a distant second with 500, Isaac said.

Other schools participating in the games included Michigan State University, University of North Carolina at Charlotte and Princeton University.

Mudd said the scholarship will be sent in approximately six weeks with an accompanying letter stating who won the scholarship for the University.

The letter will recommend that the money be divided among the winning team members, Mudd said. Since many of the team members are on athletic scholarships, it will probably go into the University's general scholarship fund.

The scholarship was donated by Budweiser, the American Cancer Society and the City of Fort Lauderdale.

Along with the scholarship, Isaac said they received a lot of "freebies" such as posters, suntan lotion, aerobics and t-shirts.

Next spring break, Isaac said, the group plans to go to Daytona Beach, Fla.

In Advance Faculty Senate to review minority conditions at A&M

A special committee will present a resolution to the Faculty Senate Monday urging Texas A&M to renew a commitment to improving minority conditions at A&M.

The meeting will be in 601 Rudder Tower at 3:15 p.m.

The senate's Committee on Minority Conditions at Texas A&M will ask that a special assistant to the provost be appointed to implement various recommendations of the report. It also will ask that the number of minority graduate fellowships and undergraduate minority scholarships be increased.

Also, the committee is seeking funding from the Board of Regents to implement the policies recommended in the report, and it wants A&M President Frank Vandiver to delegate the responsibility of implementing the policies to the appropriate offices and officers.

The report has drawn unfavorable responses from both Gordon P. Eaton, provost and vice president for academic affairs, and Clinton A. Phillips, dean of faculties, who disagree with many of the committee's findings. Eaton, scheduled to give a guest presentation at the meeting.

In other business, the senate will consider a resolution recognizing the genetics faculty as an intercollegiate faculty.

Also, May graduation candidates will be considered for approval.

Discussion also will continue on the core curriculum proposal.

New mayor, members sworn into CS council

By Craig Renfro
 Staff Writer

At Thursday's College Station City Council meeting there was a change of guard, as the old council members bowed out and the new council members were sworn in.

Mayor Larry Ringer, councilman Dick Haddock, councilwoman Pat Boughton and councilwoman Sara G. Jones were sworn in by municipal judge Phil Banks.

Ringer said he was nervous about the induction, but he looks forward to the challenge of replacing former mayor Gary Halter.

"You (Halter) are a tough act to follow, but I'll do my best," Ringer said.

He said he wants the citizens' support and hopes to work with the city council and staff to address problems facing the city. Ringer said a number of advisory committees have positions open. He encouraged citizens to participate in these programs.

"I want the citizens to tell us we're right and when we're wrong," Ringer said.

The city presented awards to member council members Lynn Milne, Robert Rannels and Halter.

Halter served 11 years on council, the last six as mayor. He won't miss the phone calls and meetings, but will miss friends the council and in city hall.

"Some people thought I would break Ernest Langford's record," Halter said. Langford served years as College Station mayor.

Halter said he learned a lot about the city's operations from manager William Cole, and that he will be in good hands with the council.

Rannels, who served six years on council, said he didn't always agree with some of the council's programs, but that the council did accomplish some important goals.
