Cause of explosion at plant still unknown

BRYAN'S MILL (AP) — Several days may be needed to determine the cause of an explosion and fire that killed two men and injured three others at a sour gas plant, officials said Wednesday.

A Shell Oil Co. team is investigating Tuesday's accident at the plant in this Northeast Texas community.

Shell spokesman Bill Scrimshire said, "I don't think we're going to know that (cause) for several days, maybe even weeks."

Scrimshire said the explosion is believed to have started in a utility building near the sulphur unit of the Shell Western E&P Inc. sour gas plant.

The five workers injured near the utility room, Scrimshire said. The plant was closed for maintenance when it exploded.

One of the workers, John 53, of Linden, died at Parkland Memorial hospital in Dallas, said the spokeswoman Catherine El...
