Slouch By Jim Eard

"I took all these notes in this course last semester. I studied them, condensed them to a single volume, reduced the volume to a report, summarized the report in a single page; compressed the page to a paragraph, then to a single sentence and finally to a single word, and then... I forgot the word."

Poll shows Clements will win GOP primary

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Gov. Bill Clements leads the Republican gubernatorial race and will win the GOP primary Saturday without a runoff unless there is an unexpected increase of non-traditional GOP voters, according to the latest Houston Chronicle-KTRK-TV poll.

Among traditional primary voters, Clements has pulled ahead further in recent weeks, the poll said. His opponents, Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt and former Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, have gained no ground, according to the follow-up survey of likely GOP primary voters conducted Sunday through Tuesday.

Clements has 62 percent of the support of those surveyed, Loeffler 16 percent and Hance 15 percent, with 7 percent undecided, the survey released Wednesday night showed.

The poll was conducted by the University of Houston Public Research Center.

Richard Murray, the UH scientist who conducted the poll, said, "Clements is pulling away among traditional Republicans. There is a bandwagon effect there. The marginal voters are going to Clements."

At a San Angelo news conference Thursday Loeffler said he is concerned about the poll results. "Our polls do not show the same, continuing to insist that Clements would be in a heavy turnout in his sprawling congressional district."

Hance too decried the poll results and said it was "irresponsible to release it so close to Saturday primary election."

Here's your chance for one last bash before finals.
