4 may be indicted in killings

HENDERSON (AP) — A prosecutor says he may pursue capital murder indictments against four people in connection with the 1983 killings of five people abducted from a fast-food restaurant in Kilgore. Rusk County District Attorney William Ferguson mentioned the case Monday in comments at a county budget hearing. It marked the first time officials have commented on the precise number of suspects.

After the budget hearing, Ferguson declined to elaborate on possible suspects, details of the county's case or when it would be presented to the grand jury. At the budget hearing where he discussed the high cost of capital murder trials, Ferguson said the FBI and Texas Rangers are pushing his office to present the cases to the July session of the Rusk County grand jury.

The grand jury is set to next convene on July 7. Authorities said the victims were kidnapped from a Kentucky Fried Chicken Restaurant, Mary Tyler, 37; Opie Ann Hughes, 37; David Maxwell, 19; Joey Johnson, 20; and Monty Landers, 20 were found shot to death in a Rusk County oilfield.

All but Landers were restaurant employees. Although $2,000 was taken from the restaurant cash register, investigators said the case did not fit the pattern of a simple robbery.

Months after the slaying, Kilgore Police Chief C.R. Headen said, "The Kentucky Fried Chicken case doesn't make sense in its entirety. Robbery may have been the motive, but there's a good chance it's going to be related to drugs."

Headen said he suspected more than one person was involved because the killers were able to take their victims out the back door of the restaurant, load them into a vehicle on a busy street and drive away without attracting attention.

A total of $50,000 in reward money, some of that from Kentucky Fried Chicken, was offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers.

UT tries to stop document deterioration

AUSTIN (AP) — Experts in a University of Texas laboratory are working to halt the deterioration time has caused to two of the state's most significant historic documents. One of the documents is the Texas Declaration of Independence from Mexico, adopted at Washington-on-the-Brazos on March 2, 1836. The other is the letter written by Alamo commander William B. Travis in which he declared, "I shall never surrender or retreat."

Work on the two documents is being conducted by the conservation laboratory of UT's Hammon Humanities Research Center.

Judge nominated through 'luck of the draw'

GATESVILLE (AP) — Coryell County Judge Doug Smith got the luck of the draw Tuesday when his name was picked out of a hat to decide his party's nomination for the seat he's held for 16 years. A recount Monday of the results of the June 7 Democratic runoff election had left Smith and his challenger, Justice of the Peace Larry McDonald, stuck in a tie with 1,530 votes each. The Texas Election Code prescribes drawing lots in the case of a tie in a vote recount. McDonald said, "I don't think that's any way to pick a county judge, but that's what the election code calls for." McDonald had outpolled Smith in the primary, 1,671 to 1,493. But in the runoff, Smith regained the lead, 1,528 to 1,522, and McDonald asked for the recount. It wasn't the only tie that came out of the Texas primary election. After the announcement, Tate withdrew in protest.

Views changed on death penalty

AUSTIN (AP) — Joyce Munguia never believed in capital punishment. Her sister recalled that she would cry whenever she read about an execution in the Texas death house. On Tuesday, Joyce Munguia was buried. John W. "Jackie" Elliott, 25, and Ricky Elizondo, 22, are being held without bond on capital murder charges in connection with her death. Lillian Munguia, Joyce's sister, says she also did not believe in capital punishment. Now she's not sure. "I feel hurt, I feel mad," she said as she held Joyce Munguia's daughter. "She was 18 years old and left behind a child. That baby is never going to know who her mother was." Joyce Munguia left her family's east Austin home Friday at 7 p.m., saying she would be back within three hours. Her badly beaten and partially clothed body was found later that night under a bridge near her home. Authorities said she was sexually assaulted and killed by 16 blows to the head and shoulders from a belt made from a motorcycle chain. Homicide investigators and members of the Austin Police Department's Hispanic Task Force, after a tip from a confidential caller, arrested four suspects hours later, two of whom remain jailed pending charges. The police said some of the suspects belong to a loosely-knit gang called the Chain Gang of their chain belts. "What can we say?" Munguia, 21, a brother of the victim's young to understand, she something wrong. "If those people could little girl looking for her mother. Munguia said, "I know how we feel."
