Gorbachev lauds Polish government

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev praised Polish leaders Monday for their "unbending defense" of communism in crushing Solidarity, and he accused the West of using the turmoil to foment unrest in Poland.

The Soviet leader's comments in a speech to the first Polish Communist Party congress in five years were believed to be the Kremlin's most definitive statement on the decision to impose martial law in December 1981 and suppress the Soviet bloc's first free trade union.

Gorbachev called the contest between Solidarity, born during the labor unrest of 1980, and Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's government a "struggle for the existence of socialism itself in Poland" and a lesson for other East European countries.

He said the Polish crisis was not a "protest of workers against socialism" but "a protest against distortions in socialism" and demonstrated the dangers to Communist parties of losing touch with workers.

"It revealed the whole complexity of the contemporary competition between the two systems," he said. "Threatening the socialist system, attempts to undermine it from the outside, tearing one or another country from the socialist alliance signify a threat not only to the will of nations but also to the entire postwar order, and ultimately, to peace."

In an apparent reference to the imposition of martial law, Gorbachev praised the Polish authorities for holding "back the attack by the enemies of socialism with their own forces."

In the strongest endorsement he has given to a Soviet-bloc leader since gaining power in March 1985, Gorbachev declared: "Poland owes a lot to its outstanding leader, Wojciech Jaruzelski."

He praised the general for his "energy and political thoroughness, farsightedness and ability to find solutions to very complex problems for his unbending defense of the interests of his nation, the cause of socialism."

After 16 months of worker unrest and repeated threats of Soviet intervention, Jaruzelski imposed martial law and crushed Solidarity, which later was outlawed. The formal status of martial law was lifted in 1983.

Soviet writers approve museum for Pasternak

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Writers' Union has voted to establish a museum honoring Boris Pasternak, who was expelled from the organization after "Doctor Zhivago" appeared in the West. He died in official disgrace in 1960.

Poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko told a news conference Monday that he hopes "Doctor Zhivago" will be published in the Soviet Union. It has been banned for its sympathetic portrayal of Russians who opposed the 1917 Bolshevik revolution.

The decision to acknowledge Pasternak, who retained the devotion of his Soviet readers despite official disapproval, was one of several taken at a Writers' Union congress last week that could indicate a trend toward some liberalization.

tomarily follows the wishes of a congress, would act on it.

Pasternak was barred from accepting the 1958 Nobel Prize for Literature. He was expelled from the Writers' Union and died in his country house at Peredelkino outside Moscow.

His family maintained the rambling, two-story home as a museum for a generation, including Pasternak's study and a table around which literary and artistic greats had gathered.

The writer's son Yevgeny lost a two-year court battle in 1984 against the union, which owns the house, and it was stripped bare that October.

It was not certain whether "Doctor Zhivago" would be published here, but Yevtushenko made clear that he favors it. Korotich said the book "isn't very revolutionary, and I guess it is very logical to publish it."

Cultural officials suggested at a news conference four months ago, however, that the novel would not be issued in the Soviet Union.

World Briefs

1 in 10 disabled over 85 lives alone
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly one in 10 of America's oldest residents lives alone despite being hampered by disability, according to a private analysis of Census Bureau figures.

The study of Americans aged 85 and over found that 9.3 percent of them cope with life by themselves despite being disabled. Nearly half of all Americans in that age group have a disability of one sort or another, reports Charles Longino of the Center for Social Research in Aging at the University of Miami.

New home sales plummet 11.6 percent
 WASHINGTON (AP) — New home sales fell 11.6 percent in May, the biggest decline in more than two years, the government reported Monday, with the setback attributed to rising mortgage rates.

The Commerce Department said new single-family homes were sold at an annual rate of 764,000 units in May following a 5.7 percent April sales decline.

The decline in sales, the steepest since a 13 percent plunge in January 1984, was widespread around the country.

Wheat surplus adds to U.S. trade deficit
 WASHINGTON — The nation's merchandise trade deficit widened to $14.2 billion in May from $12.1 billion the month before, with agricultural imports surpassing exports for the first time in more than two decades, the government said Friday.

Agricultural trade has traditionally been one of the few categories in the trade report to consistently show strong U.S. surpluses.

Friday's Commerce Department report showed that, once again, the turnaround in the trade deficit expected from a weakening U.S. dollar has yet to materialize.

An Open Letter In Appreciation of KATHY STAMM

We, the undersigned, being of stout heart and dubious sanity take pen to paper, or in this case ink to newsprint, to express our admiration of and respect for Kathy Stamm.

This woman, for reasons as yet undetermined by mere mortals, is willing to be seen in public with three Former Students of questionable character. Even more unfathomable than her willingness to be seen at large with these people is her inclination to give up her infrequent and precious free time to be with them and therefore enrich their lives.

Thus, we the aforementioned trio, take this opportunity to publicly express our respect for, our love of, and our pride in her. We are confident in her ability to not only persevere but to triumph. We are behind her completely if for no other reason than if we were in front of her we would have to take her tests and then she would never pass.

With love always,
 Kent L. Streeter
 Carol K. Caldwell
