A&M Rugby tournament kicks up this weekend

By Homer Jacobs
Sports Writer

Sports fans in dire need of a spectator replacement for motoball or team handball featured at the Goodwill Games may have an alternative — Rugby.

The 10th annual Texas A&M Summer Sevens 1986 Rugby tournament will take place Saturday at the A&M polo grounds near Eastgate beginning at 9 a.m.

Approximately 45 teams representing Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas will participate in the day-long event.

A&M's club team is the defending champion of the Summer Sevens tourney, winning last year for the first time in nine years. The victory in the competitive A&M tournament gave the Aggies a No. 6 ranking a year ago.

"It's the best Sevens tournament around," team public relations director Mark Flynn said.

"Sevens" refers to the number of players each Rugby team is allowed to suit up in the summer. Fifteen members are eligible to play for the squad during the fall and spring semesters.

Saturday's tournament consists of eight brackets with eight to 10 teams placed in each draw.

Each game will be comprised of two seven-minute halves loaded with fast-paced action.

Because of the constant running involved in the game, Flynn said, heat exhaustion is the main problem that arises.

The oval Rugby ball, which spawned the development of the American football, is the "hot potato" in this game.

The ball can be advanced by a kick or lateral pass, and a team member can run forward with it.

Scoring is based on points given for placing the ball in the try zone, which is similar to football's end zone, and kicking the ball through a goal post.

A team that places the ball in the try zone earns four points, and then attempts a 22-meter kick for two more points.

Penalty kicks, if successful, are worth three points.

In addition to the 45 or so teams that will be participating, is the Old Maroon team — an alumni squad of Aggie Rugby players.

Flynn promises a lot of action and a strong showing by the Aggies' club.

"We want this bad, this is our tourney," he said.

British Open weather plagues golf's elite

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Maybe the Dallas Cowboys should have passed on early training camp.

Strong safety Dexter Clinkscale was a no-show, the three top rookie draft picks remained unsigned, and offensive tackle Kurt Peterson could be lost for the season with a torn knee cartilage.

Peterson flew back to Dallas Thursday for a check on an ailing right knee that was first injured in last season's 20-0 National Football Conference playoff loss to the Los Angeles Rams.

Peterson, who has been limping, hurt the knee on the first day of practice.

Clinkscale was expected to report to camp in the next several days. Sources close to the team say he boycotted the early camp to reporting six days before players are required to under the collective bargaining agreement.

Clinkscale, who is in the option year of his contract, also is the Cowboys' union representative. Coach Tom Landry can't fine Clinkscale, who hasn't called him, for the unexcused absence.

Three top draft picks — wide receiver Mike Sherrard, running back Darryl Slack and defensive tackle Mark Walen — were still unsigned Thursday.

"It's reaching the point where those rookies need to get here if they are going to be ready to help the team," Landry said.

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — Only Welchman Ian Woosnam could match par with a 70 Thursday in the opening round of the 115th British Open golf championship on Turnberry's treacherous Ailsa course in biting cold and howling wind.

His feat surprised even Woosnam. "I didn't expect to shoot 70. I thought 77 or 78 would be a good score. I was just trying to stay in contention," he said.

Instead, he is leading the oldest of golf's championships, and a disarrayed corps of the world's finest players was left to mutter about what might have been.

"Pars were great, birdies fantastic, and if you managed to salvage par from the rough, that wasn't too bad either," said Nick Faldo of England, tied for second at 71 with Robert Lee and Gordon Brand, both of Britain, and Anders Forsbrand of Sweden.

"On a day like this, you just try to stay in the championship, keep your hopes alive," said Faldo, who birdied the last three holes he played.

And that was not easy.

"I'm looking 81 in the face and that's no fun," said Jack Nicklaus, the 46-year-old Masters champion, who shot a 78.

"There are a lot of the best players in the world being humiliated out there," Australian Greg Norman said after he struggled to a 4-over-par 74.

"Brutal," said Deane Beman, the American PGA Tour Commissioner making an appearance as a competitor after 12 years as an administrator.

Beman, in the second group off the tee and playing in the worst of the weather, birdied his last three holes for a 75.

"Four days like this and the winning score might be 320," said Seve Ballesteros, the Spaniard who came into this tournament with four consecutive victories and shot an opening 76.

Sam Randolph, a former U.S. amateur champ who turned pro last month, was the leading American at 72.

He was tied with West German Bernhard Langer, Ian Stanley of Australia and Andrew Brooks of Scotland.

None of the holders of the Big Four titles was even close. Nicklaus and U.S. Open champ Ray Floyd had their 78s. PGA champ Hubert Green shot 77. And Sandy Lyle of Scotland, the defending champion here, had a 76.

Boyd checks into hospital

BOSTON (AP) — Boston pitcher Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd admitted himself to a hospital Thursday for a comprehensive evaluation, including drug testing, the Red Sox said.

He went to the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester one day after the team continued its suspension of the pitcher. The team said his hospitalization was "mutually agreed upon."

No other details of the nature of the evaluation were given and the Red Sox said no medical information would be released without Boyd's permission.

General Manager Lou Gorman has said the team decided to extend Boyd's suspension, which began last Friday, before the pitcher was stopped in his car and searched by narcotics officers outside his Chelsea home Tuesday night.

Police said they found no drugs.
