Patrol group not implicated in beating of illegal alien

PRESIDIO (AP) — No link has been found between a controversial paramilitary group and the reported assault of an undocumented alien by three heavily armed men dressed in military fatigues, authorities said.

Gary Brown, chief deputy with the Presidio County sheriff's office, said Tuesday that an investigation by his department did not produce any arrests at the time of the July 24 attack, which occurred near Presidio, located near the Mexican border.

On July 30, Presidio County deputies arrested three Odessa men near the border and charged them with unlawfully carrying weapons.

Hugh Rushton, chief U.S. Border Patrol agent for the Marfa sector, said his agents are investigating the reported assault and the arrests.

Civilian Materiel Assistance, a paramilitary group, started patrols last month in Arizona with the stated aim of stopping drug trafficking across the border.

"We have not been able to link them with any paramilitary operations," Rushton said of the arrested men. "And they do not claim to be a part of the CMA."

Last month, CMA came under scrutiny by officials after several group members stopped illegal aliens in Arizona for questioning.

The group later decided to call off its plans for border patrols.

Tom Posey of Decatur, Ala., who started the CMA, said Tuesday in a telephone interview with The El Paso Times that the three arrested men are not members of his group.

"It may be someone imitating us, but our people are not out there," he said. "We do not carry weapons."

A farmer spotted three heavily armed men wearing army fatigues traveling along the U.S.-Mexico border outside Presidio, Brown said. According to the farmer, they had an assortment of weapons, including an AR-15 semi-automatic rifle, pistols and knives, he said.

Texas man convicted in capital murder case

WACO (AP) — Testimony on whether Clifton Eugene Belyeu should get life in prison or the death penalty will continue today after a Waco jury spent less than an hour Wednesday convicting Belyeu of capital murder.

Belyeu, 27, of Cleburne was found guilty in the stabbing and shooting death of a West woman.

The punishment phase of the trial adjourned at 4 p.m. and will resume at 9 a.m. today.

Belyeu was convicted of the Dec. 10, 1985, slaying of Melodie Bolton, the wife of a prominent Central Texas businessman.

Another Cleburne man, Earnest Ray Moore, 21, also is charged with the slaying. The two are being tried separately because Belyeu has a prior felony conviction while Moore does not. No trial date has been set for Moore.

Ken Ables and Fred Horner, Belyeu's court-appointed attorneys, called two witnesses who testified for less than 30 minutes.

Defense witness Roger Smith, of the Dallas County Institute of Forensic Sciences, testified that he compared footprints found in Bolton's house in West with the soles of tennis shoes found in Belyeu's trailer home.

Smith said he could not positively identify the left tennis shoe as the shoe that made the footprint.

Earlier in the trial, Dr. James Ebert, a forensic photography expert from New Mexico, as a prosecution witness, testified that Belyeu's left tennis shoe made a muddy footprint in the Bolton home. He said he found three matching characteristics between the footprint and Belyeu's shoe. He said there was no likelihood any other shoe made the print.

Tiny town finds it must reincorporate

NEVADA (AP) — Plans for a weekend election to resurrect the tiny Texas town's government are as dead as Nevada has turned out to be, officials said Wednesday.

Residents had petitioned and won permission to elect new officials Saturday, believing that their town was still incorporated although the last election was before World War II.

But dusty records that were misfiled and not seen for five decades have turned up and show that Nevada voted to disband in 1932, said Rhonda Watkins, Col. Lincoln County elections clerk.

George Webb, 66, a retired farmer who signed the petition, said, "That means we've got to start again from scratch and incorporate all over again. But we're working on it."

Urgent search for fugitive inmate continues despite lack of leads

BRECKENRIDGE (AP) — The search for a fugitive death row inmate will continue, despite a lack of new leads to the escapee's whereabouts, authorities said Wednesday.

Richard Donald "Stony" Foster was believed to be hiding in the rugged terrain near Possum Kingdom Lake, officials said.

"We're not going to let him wait us out..." said Stephens County Sheriff James Cain. "I personally think he's still in this area."

Foster, 33, and another inmate escaped Sunday night from the Stephens County Jail.

Texas Ranger Billy Peterson said, "We'll search 'til that sucker's caught."

Palo Pinto County Sheriff John Turpin said there were no leads in the case.

"Everything's the same," said Turpin. "We've got nothing. We'll just keep searching the same area."

Turpin said the escapee may have taken refuge in a house.

"The problem is that some people in the homes in the area are gone for a few days," he said. "Some are there only on weekends. We don't know."

Former lawyers for the Vietnam veteran have said Foster is suffering from war-related stress and will not give up easily.

Fort Worth lawyer Jim Lane said, "I think I know where he is, at least in his own mind. He's back on the Mekong Delta in Vietnam."

Peterson called Lane's theory "pure nonsense."

Inmate Cindy Davis, 27, who escaped with Foster, was captured Monday morning on the east side of Possum Kingdom Lake, about 25 miles northeast of Breckenridge.

At the time of the escape, Davis was being held on a charge of attempted capital murder for allegedly shooting at a police officer. Her parents said they believe Foster took their daughter as a hostage. Cain said that possibility is under investigation.

The possibility that Foster is still in the area worries some residents. "I'd just as soon they catch him now," said James DaVault, who owns a cabin across the road from the dump where Foster discarded some belongings.

Foster had been convicted of murder in November 1985 in Park County for the killing of a Springfield man in April 1984. His execution date had not been set. He had been sent from death row to Breckenridge for a pretrial hearing on kidnapping charge.

The escapee was charged with kidnapping in connection with an attack in May 1984 during which seven people were held hostage at Citizens National Bank in Breckenridge.
