Walker agrees to 5-year contract with Cowboys

Herschel Walker

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Becoming the highest-paid member of the Dallas Cowboys ever, running back Herschel Walker agreed Wednesday to a five-year contract and said he was looking forward to joining Tony Dorsett in the backfield.

But Dorsett, upon finding out about Walker's salary, estimated at about $1 million annually, said he would consider asking for a trade.

"If they are asking another running back more, I don't want to be here," said Dorsett, a 10-year veteran whose contract was renegotiated last summer. "I will ask for a trade, yes."

Dorsett, who makes about $450,000 per season, said "I'm unhappy about it no doubt, who wouldn't be? I'm on the verge of passing Jim Brown to become the second all-time leading rusher in NFL history and you're going to bring in a guy who has not contributed one yard to (the team's) success and you are going to pay him twice as much as you pay me. I'm definitely upset."

Earlier, Dorsett said it would be a "dream" to be in the same backfield with Walker.

Walker, unaware of Dorsett's reaction, said he was hoping to be in shape to play in Dallas' final exhibition game.

"I hope I can play by the last pre-season game," said Walker, who was listed at the bottom of the depth chart at tailback behind Dorsett and Robert Lavette. "I want to be 100 percent when I play. Of course, when I do play is up to Coach (Tom) Landry."

Walker, a fifth-round NFL draft gamble by Dallas in 1985, admitted "I'm very far behind. But I'll work hard."

Walker, 24, the 1982 Heisman Trophy winner who set a professional football rushing record for one season with 2,411 yards, reached a handshake agreement at dawn with the Cowboys after a 22-hour bargaining session between agent Peter Johnson and club president Tex Schramm.

He watched karate movies during the negotiations.

"A handshake is good enough," said Walker, who perhaps was the most heralded player in the USFL as a member of the New Jersey Generals.

"I feel honored to join the Cowboys because they are a class team," Walker said. "I don't know what I can contribute this year because I have a lot of catching up to do. I always put my life in the Lord's hands. I prayed and asked the Lord to get everything over with. I wanted to play football. I think the Lord works in mysterious ways."

An elated Schramm said, "This is a great milestone for this team. I feel just like I did the day we traded for Tony Dorsett. We have us a great football player."

Team officials said he would be in uniform for Saturday night's pre-season game against the Los Angeles Raiders, but would not play.

Walker said he couldn't wait to team with Dorsett, the NFL's third all-time leading rusher.

"It would be an honor to play with him because Tony has a lot of class," Walker said. "Just look at what he has accomplished. I've always admired Tony. We're not going to have any problems. We both want to win."

Landry said he would not change the Cowboys' offense, but would "adjust it to Walker's talents. Of course, he will have to start out at the bottom of the depth chart."

Walker was released by a personal services contract by General's owner Donald Trump, who took the action after the USFL decided to delay play until at least the fall of 1987.

Schramm's longshot pays big dividend

DALLAS (AP) — "The Big B" as some Dallas Cowboys fans call him, likes to play longshots.

Tex Schramm is the first to enter his pocket to take a shot at a high-odds horse if he finds someone about to visit a track.

But made good the club president ever no paid off at the parimutuel windows in the 1985 NFL draft.

As the middle rounds began at the year, Schramm kept thinking about Walker, the 1982 Heisman Trophy winner who was the star of the USFL and the New Jersey Generals.

"There were still some good players around but I kept thinking it might be like some day to have on the same team with Tony Dorsett," Schramm said. "It was worth it. I had to decide if it was worth it."

Schramm had taken some nibbles in the 1984 draft by selecting Oregonian Carl Lewis in the 12th round. The Cowboys had traded wide receiver Butch Johnson to the Houston Oilers for a fifth-round pick in 1985 and didn't want to be wasteful.

"I decided to gamble," Schramm said. "I was worried some other team might pick Walker."

Schramm said he didn't realize very many needles at the time but what many considered his folly.

"I imagine there are a lot of people in the NFL today asking the question now why they didn't take him in the fourth round," Schramm said. "Now, what we were hoping might happen has happened."

Walker agreed to a five-year contract to become a member of the Cowboys on Wednesday, reportedly for $1 million a year.

Cowboys' owner H.R. "Burr" Bright called it the club's "most wonderful move since Schramm obtained Dorsett from Seattle in a 1977 trade for a No. 1 draft pick."

"It was one of the most imaginative and skillful acts performed by anybody in professional sports," Bright said.

Schramm has a bold track record on taking such longshots.

Another of his coups involved quarterback Roger Staubach. Schramm tabbed him in the 10th round of the 1964 draft although he had five years of military service facing him after graduating from the Naval Academy.

"It's not like Schramm hasn't taken a chance before. 'You can look bad,' Schramm said. 'That's why they call it a gamble.'"

SWC awaits ruling on Prop. 48

By Tom Tagliabue
Sports Writer

Proposition 48, an NCAA measure designed to insure that only qualified student athletes be admitted to collegiate athletic programs, may cost some qualified athletes a year of eligibility unless the NCAA agrees to an appeal made by the Southwest Conference.

Dutch Baughman, Associate Director of the SWC, told The Battalion Wednesday the NCAA should reveal by the end of the week whether or not athletes, who took and passed the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or American College Test (ACT) entrance exams on residual testing dates rather than national testing dates, will be eligible to play their freshman year.

"When the first interpretation of Prop. 48) came out, it said the tests had to be taken on national dates and no residual tests," Baughman explained. "Well, we had never seen residual tests and we didn't know what it was. So we called the NCAA and they told us (a residual test) was a test taken on a campus. Well, the national tests are taken on a campus, too!"

Baughman said the SAT and ACT offices told him residual tests are offered on different dates than the national tests and must meet three conditions in order to be accepted by the colleges.

Maryland to alter schedule

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The University of Maryland will cancel or reschedule all seven of its fall semester basketball games to ease academic pressures on athletes, university Chancellor John B. Slaughter said Wednesday.

Practice also will be limited before and during final exams.

"The worst thing we could do would be nothing," Slaughter told a news conference. "I think it will prove to be tremendously beneficial."

Slaughter said basketball players have been under a great deal of stress since the cocaine-related death of All-American Len Bias on June 19.

The chancellor also announced a restructuring of the athletic department academic counseling program to place a greater emphasis on classroom performance.

Two of Bias' teammates, Terry

Long and David Gregg, have been indicted on cocaine possession and obstruction of justice charges in connection with the Bias death.

Slaughter characterized the schedule change as an emergency action to ensure that athletes are given a chance to succeed academically.

The rescheduling and cancellations will cost the university between $75,000 and $100,000 from lost gate receipts, according to Athletic Director Dick Dull.

"We will try to put as many games as possible in the winter break," Dull said. The fall semester ends on Dec. 19.

"I think the pressures they (the athletes) should have on them should be on the academic level, not the athletic level," Dull said. "If we're competitive, fine. If we're not competitive, we'll deal with that as well."
