Libertarians present plan for budget crisis

AUSTIN (AP) — Statewide candidates of the Libertarian Party, who will be on the Nov. 4 general election ballot, say they have solutions to the state's financial problems.

Theresa S. Doyle, San Antonio, candidate for governor, told a news conference Wednesday, said, "The key words are deregulate and privatize."

She suggested doing away with the agriculture department, the Railroad Commission, and the Texas Forest Service.

"Virtually every agency in the area of natural resources is an agency that should be left to the private sector if there is a demand for its services," Doyle, a school teacher, said.

She also suggested state highways might be turned into toll roads.

George Meeks, San Antonio, candidate for comptroller, proposed a 10 percent cut of all state government budgets, plus a 50 percent slash in the salary of Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Punishment phase begins in San Antonio man's trial

VICTORIA (AP) — Testimony began Wednesday in the punishment phase in the trial of a San Antonio man convicted of killing a banker's wife during a botched extortion attempt.

Jurors deliberated about four hours Tuesday morning before convicting Lesley Lee Gosch, 31, of capital murder in the death of Rebecca Jo Patton, of San Antonio.

Gosch, who showed no emotion when the verdict was read, faces life in prison or death by injection for the crime.

Patton was shot seven times in the head during a September 1985 extortion attempt by Gosch and alleged accomplice John Laurence Rogers in Castle Hills in San Antonio, testimony showed.

During the punishment phase Wednesday, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn testified that Gosch pleaded guilty Aug. 19, 1985 to manufacture and sale of a silencer. He was supposed to be sentenced Sept. 20, but failed to appear.
