South Africa executes 3 with little public outcry

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Three black insurgents, including a 19-year-old convicted in a bombing that killed five whites, were hanged Tuesday after refusing to seek clemency.

U.S. civil rights leader Coretta Scott King, meanwhile, canceled a meeting with President P.W. Botha at the last minute. She announced her decision a day after leading anti-apartheid activists said they would not see her if she met with Botha.

The execution of the rebels, members of the outlawed African National Congress guerrilla group, caused little public outcry.

Previous executions of ANC members prompted worldwide condemnation and appeals for clemency.

The three — Sibusiso Andrew Zondo, Simho Bridget Xulu and Clarence Lucky Payi — were hanged at Pretoria Central Prison at 7 a.m., Supreme Court Registrar Martin van der Westhuizen said.

He said three other convicted murderers also were executed. South Africa executes about 100 people a year, most of them convicted murderers.

The Sowetan, a Johannesburg newspaper for black readers, quoted relatives and defense attorneys as saying the condemned men did not want a last-minute appeal to delay the executions.

They were in good spirits and singing freedom songs on the eve of their executions, the lawyers were quoted as saying.

"They told us not to worry because they were dying for their own people," the Sowetan quoted one relative as saying.

About 40 people turned out for a memorial service for the three in a

Johannesburg chapel. The Rev. Jacobs said Zondo, Xulu and Payi "have given their lives in the struggle for freedom in our land. They are in the belief that they were dying for the liberation of their neighbors."

Zondo, 19, was convicted in the Dec. 23 bombing at a shopping center south of Durban. He killed three women and three children and killed 48 others wounded.

Zondo did not testify in his trial. The trial judge noted that Zondo had acknowledged to a magistrate that he planted the bomb but tended only to wound people.

Xulu and Payi were convicted in February in the May 1984 assassination of a former student leader had turned against the African National Congress. Their ages were not available.

Women fare well in primaries held in 9 states, D.C.

(AP) — Democratic Rep. Barbara Mikulski and Republican Linda Chavez swept past their male rivals Tuesday night to claim competing Senate nominations in Maryland.

Liberal activist Mark Green won the Democratic spot on the ballot in New York against Sen. Alfonse D'Amato.

On the busiest primary night of the season — and one in which voters treated women candidates kindly — Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, the daughter of the late Robert F. Kennedy, won a Democratic nomination to the House from Maryland.

Connecticut lawmaker Julie Belaga won the Republican nomination to face Gov. William O'Neill in November. And former Rep. Bella Abzug held a narrow lead in a multi-candidate Democratic primary in a suburban New York district. Abzug, who represented Manhattan for six years in the House, led Oren Teicher 35 percent to 34 percent with 95 percent of the votes tallied.

In other results from voting in nine states and the District of Columbia, former Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody, running for the Senate in next-door New Hampshire, won the Democratic nomination to oppose GOP Sen. Warren Rudman.

Minnesota's Democratic Gov. Rudy Perpich took a slim lead as the first votes were counted in his race with St. Paul Mayor George Latimer and three other opponents. Former state Rep. Cal Ludeman won the GOP nomination.

Former Vermont Gov. Richard Snelling earned the GOP spot on the fall ballot against Democratic Sen. Patrick Leahy, who was unopposed for nomination to a third term. Snelling, coaxed out of retirement by national GOP officials, was garnering over 70 percent of the vote.

In a race to succeed outgoing Gov. Harry Hughes in Maryland, Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer defeated Attorney General Stephen Sachs in a four-way race for the Democratic spot on the ballot. State lawmaker Thomas J. Mooney was unopposed in the Republican primary.

Chavez, a lifelong Democrat who converted recently to the Republican ranks, had more than 75 percent of the Maryland Republican primary vote in a crowded field in the race to pick a candidate to replace retiring GOP Sen. Charles Mathias.

With 58 percent of the vote tallied in the Democratic primary, Mikulski was winning 44 percent, to 38 percent for Rep. Michael Barnes and 14 percent for Gov. Harry Hughes.

The Maryland Senate race represents an opportunity for Democrats to pick up a seat in the national battle for control of the Senate.

In the New York Senate race, Green was winning 53 percent of the vote although he was outspent by a large margin by rival John S. Dyson. Dyson sunk $5 million of his own money in his failed bid to win the nomination. Green is a former associate of consumer activist Ralph Nader.

New Hampshire's Republican Gov. John Sununu easily won re-nomination. Paul McEachern, an attorney, won the Democratic spot on the ballot.

The doctors of optometry affiliated with Texas State Optical know that every contact lens prescription must be exact. The fit must be precise. You must be completely comfortable.

Yet every year people spend fortunes on contacts, put them away in a drawer and never wear them.

Because they're uncomfortable. They don't fit right.

These people have never been to Texas State Optical.

You can't afford contact lenses that don't fit right. At any price.
