Hunts' attorneys ready arguments on case transfer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lawyers for the billionaire Hunt brothers and a group of banks will argue in federal court today over whether the Hunts should be forced to take their bankruptcy cases back to Texas.

A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals will hear the case at 10 a.m. and could rule later in the day.

Companies owned by William Herbert Hunt, Nelson Bunker Hunt and Lamar Hunt filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy law in New Orleans Aug. 29 to keep 23 banks from foreclosing on $1.5 billion in past-due loans.

Last week, U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders of Dallas gave the Hunts until today to transfer the cases back to the bankruptcy court in Dallas.

The Hunt interests involved in the cases are Placid Oil Co., a Placid subsidiary and the William Herbert Hunt personal estate trust.

Sanders also ruled that any bankruptcy proceedings filed on behalf of the Hunts' Penrod Drilling Co. must be filed in Dallas.

The Hunts appealed Sanders' order Monday to the 5th Circuit.

In a related development, court officials confirmed Wednesday that two members of the original three-judge panel that was assigned the case removed themselves this week. But officials refused to identify the judges who removed themselves, their reasons for doing so or the attorneys who replaced them.

Attorneys for the banks argue that the Hunts "have no right of appeal from the orders complained of, and even if they did, their appeals are patently unmeritorious."

Hunt associate to pay record $250,000 fine

DALLAS (AP) — An associate of the billionaire Hunt brothers has agreed to pay a record $250,000 fine and turn over records of an alleged attempt to corner the silver market, according to a federal agency.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission said Tuesday the agreement to turn over the records of the alleged 1979-1980 silver market manipulation was "the first break as far as moving the case forward."

The commission said the fine to be paid by Naji Robert Nahas of Brazil is the largest civil fine ever assessed against an individual in a futures trading case. The Dallas Morning News reported Wednesday.

The Hunts have denied any violation of the law and contend the commission has not proved their trading drove up prices.

Foreign parents upset by public school fees

ARLINGTON (AP) — Foreign university students who have school-age children say they are unhappy with a policy requiring them to pay a monthly tuition fee for public schools.

Arlington school officials are facing a loss of $4.5 million in state money during the 1986-87 school year and are strictly enforcing the policy adopted in 1977.

The district is charging children of foreigners $270 a month for elementary school and $300 a month for secondary school.

Foreign parents in Arlington say they were shocked by the ruling.

The Fort Worth chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union plans to hold a meeting with some of those parents to discuss challenges to the policy.

Arlington Superintendent Donald Wright said the decision to enforce the policy was prompted by the loss of state money.

He said about 100 foreign students are affected by the policy.

Cattlemen seek damages from U.S. over dairy policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern and Western cattlemen asked Congress on Wednesday to pay them upwards of $200 million for losses they say they suffered this year because of government-subsidized dairy cow slaughter program.

Cattlemen complained after the Agriculture Department began the program that too many dairy cows were going to market at once, depressing beef prices. The program pays dairy farmers to go out of business to control milk surpluses.
